Relative pronouns & relative adverbs, progressive verbs, helping verbs, prepositional phrases & more!

RELATIVE PRONOUNS & RELATIVE ADVERBS L.4-10

A relative pronoun or relative adverb introduces an adjective clause. A clause is a sentence part. You know that an adjective modifies, or describes, a noun or pronoun. It makes sense, then, that an adjective clause tells more about a noun or pronoun. Notice the word part relate in the word relative. This will help you remember: A relative pronoun or relative adverb relates to another word in the sentence.

Relative Pronouns: That, Which, Who, Whom, Whose

- that Use that for a clause that describes a thing and relates to the subject.
  - Is the information following the relative pronoun necessary for understanding the sentence?
  - If the answer is yes, use the relative pronoun that to relate to a thing.
  - You don't need commas for an adjective clause that begins with the word that.

EX: The link that will take you to the lab's web page is right here.

relative pronoun describes the link

- which Use which for a clause that describes a thing and relates to the subject.
  - Is the information following the relative pronoun necessary for understanding the sentence?
  - If the answer is no, use the relative pronoun which to relate to a thing.
  - Be sure to place commas around an adjective clause that begins with the word which.

EX: The lab, which is located in a big city, has the finest tools available.

relative pronoun describes the lab

- who Use who for a clause that describes a person and relates to the subject.

EX: The scientist who will help complete our plant experiments is so helpful!

relative pronoun describes the scientist

- whom Use whom for a clause that describes a person and relates to the object.

EX: The scientist with whom our class will work has sent pictures and email.

relative pronoun describes the scientist

- whose Use whose to show the possessor for people and things.

EX: The scientist whose experiments are famous is the scientist we will visit.

relative pronoun describes the scientist

Relative Adverbs: Why, Where, When

Figuring out a relative adverb can be a bit confusing. Why? Well, you know an adverb can describe a verb. But a relative adverb begins an adjective clause—and an adjective clause describes a noun or pronoun. In that way, a relative adverb is like a relative pronoun. But it's not exactly the same as a relative pronoun. A relative adverb begins a clause that tells why, where, or when—just as an adverb tells why, where, or when.

why	relative adverb We know why the next experiment will take so long.
where	relative adverb This is the lab where she does her experiments.
when	relative adverb Friday is the day when she writes experiment results.

You Can Do This!

- Circle the relative adverb in each sentence.
1. The part of the jungle where the chimpanzees lived was not very far away.
  2. The explorers didn't know why they were having so much trouble finding it.
  3. It was almost midnight when they finally found it.

Choose the correct relative pronoun to complete each sentence.

4. He is the teacher _____ will tell us about the explorers. (that, which, who, whom, whose)
5. The chimpanzee _____ baby is in the tree is the leader of the group. (that, which, who, whom, whose)

Tell a friend or family member how relative pronouns and relative adverbs are alike. Then explain how they are different.

PROGRESSIVE VERBS L.4-10

You know verbs can show:

- action that happened earlier, in the past
- action that is happening now, in the present
- action that will happen later, in the future

One verb form can show continuing action. This is the progressive form.

Present	Present Progressive	Why would you choose the progressive form?
I skate in the park.	I am skating in the park.	I am skating in the park now, but I'd be happy to come to your house later.
Past	Past Progressive	Why would you choose the progressive form?
I skated in the park.	I was skating in the park.	I was skating in the park when it started raining.
Future	Future Progressive	Why would you choose the progressive form?
I will skate in the park.	I will be skating in the park.	I will be skating in the park tomorrow, and my dad will be watching my skating tricks all afternoon.

You Can Do This!

Follow the instructions below to write three sentences. Be sure each sentence clearly shows continuing action.

1. Write a sentence with the present progressive form of the verb walk.
2. Write a sentence with the past progressive form of the verb walk.
3. Write a sentence with the future progressive form of the verb walk.

Tell a friend or family member how the progressive verb forms was helpful in showing your meaning in each sentence.

HELPING VERBS: CAN, MAY, MUST L.4-10

You sometimes use a verb in a verb phrase. What are the parts of a verb phrase?

main verb = eat or more helping verbs = verb phrase

EX: I can run across the field.

helping verb main verb verb phrase

Some helping verbs tell whether someone is able to do something, allowed to do something, or required to do something.

Helping Verb	Sentence with Helping Verb	Meaning
can means "able to"	I have been practicing, and now I can run across the field.	I am able to run across the field.
may means "allowed to"	The coach told me the field will be available later today, so I may use it for practice.	I will be allowed to use the field.
must means "required to"	We will go visit my aunt during the break, but I must be sure to practice while I'm on vacation.	I am required to practice. I have a duty to practice.

You Can Do This!

Write the correct helping verb to complete the second sentence in each sentence pair.

1. She is able to do all the work on her project.
She _____ do all the work on her project. (can, may, must)
2. The teacher says, "You are allowed to work on the project in class."
The teacher says, "You _____ work on the project in class." (can, may, must)
