conduct between companies which might bear negative effects on competition in particular on horizontal cartels and collusion between competitors Attention is also paid to the debate surrounding the most adequate approach for vertical agreements which take place between firms operating at different levels of production Their effects on competition have traditionally been one of the most disputed issues in modern antitrust and tend to divide the principal schools of thought that have influenced the evolution of competition policy around the world The articles look primarily at two of the most established antitrust jurisdictions namely the United States and the European Union They discuss the general theoretical framework that has influenced the evolution of the law and policy cover the most relevant practical developments provide contrasting doctrinal views and pay particular attention to the main schools of thought that have influenced antitrust in the US and the EU and are representative of the leading discussions in the course of antitrust history

Transformative Food Value Chains for Local Development Silke Maria Stöber, Wolfgang Bokelmann, Walter Odongo, Susanne

Huyskens-Keil, Joanita Kataike, 2024-01-26 Understanding the capacity of food systems to undertake a transformation towards sustainability requires understanding how resources stream in and out of the systems As complex socio economic structures food and agricultural value chains are important means for channeling resources knowledge and agency in and out of rural areas Given their prominent role on the development agendas there is mixed evidence as to what extent value chains and their actors can contribute to improving the livelihoods in poor rural and urban areas In order to shape sustainable living places transformative capacities and good governance are important mainstays Transformative agri food value chains are robust and often act as the sole transmission belt for returning capital resources and identity back into vulnerable areas Moreover domestic or regional chains may provide urban consumers with fresh quality food that also contributes to regional identity

The Atlantic Divide in Antitrust Daniel J. Gifford, Robert T. Kudrle, 2015-02-11 How is it that two broadly similar systems of competition law have reached different results across a number of significant antitrust issues While the United States and the European Union share a commitment to maintaining competition in the marketplace and employ similar concepts and legal language in making antitrust decisions differences in social values political institutions and legal precedent have inhibited close convergence With The Atlantic Divide in Antitrust Daniel J Gifford and Robert T Kudrle explore many of the main contested areas of contemporary antitrust including mergers price discrimination predatory pricing and intellectual property After identifying how prevailing analyses differ across these areas they then examine the policy ramifications Several themes run throughout the book including differences in the amount of discretion firms have in dealing with purchasers the weight given to the welfare of various market participants and whether competition tends to be viewed as an efficiency generating process or as rivalry The authors conclude with forecasts and suggestions for how greater compatibility might ultimately be attained
