Modern Information Retrieval S. K. Bajpai, 1999 Information Retrieval Systems Gerald J. Kowalski, 2007-08-23 The growth of the Internet and the availability of enormous volumes of data in digital form have necessitated intense interest in techniques to assist the user in locating data of interest The Internet has over 350 million pages of data and is expected to reach over one billion pages by the year 2000 Buried on the Internet are both valuable nuggets to answer questions as well as a large quantity of information the average person does not care about The Digital Library effort is also progressing with the goal of migrating from the traditional book environment to a digital library environment The challenge to both authors of new publications that will reside on this information domain and developers of systems to locate information is to provide the information and capabilities to sort out the non relevant items from those desired by the consumer In effect as we proceed down this path it will be the computer that determines what we see versus the human being The days of going to a library and browsing the new book shelf are being replaced by electronic searching the Internet or the library catalogs Whatever the search engines return will constrain our knowledge of what information is available An understanding of Information Retrieval Systems puts this new environment into perspective for both the creator of documents and the consumer trying to locate information

Multimedia Information Retrieval Peter Schäuble, 1997-04-30 Multimedia Information Retrieval Content Based Information Retrieval from Large Text and Audio Databases addresses the future need for sophisticated search techniques that will be required to find relevant information in large digital data repositories such as digital libraries and other multimedia databases Because of the dramatically increasing amount of multimedia data available there is a growing need for new search techniques that provide not only fewer bits but also the most relevant bits to those searching for multimedia digital data This book serves to bridge the gap between classic ranking of text documents and modern information retrieval where composite multimedia documents are searched for relevant information Multimedia Information Retrieval Content Based Information Retrieval from Large Text and Audio Databases begins to pave the way for speech retrieval only recently has the search for information in speech recordings become feasible This book provides the necessary introduction to speech recognition while discussing probabilistic retrieval and text retrieval key topics in classic information retrieval The book then discusses speech retrieval which is even more challenging than retrieving text documents because word boundaries are difficult to detect and recognition errors affect the retrieval effectiveness This book also addresses the problem of integrating information retrieval and database functions since there is an increasing need for retrieving information from frequently changing data collections which are organized and managed by a database system Multimedia Information Retrieval Content Based Information Retrieval from Large Text and Audio Databases serves as an excellent reference source and may be used as a text for advanced courses on the topic
