Aircraft ,1913 Development of agricultural mechanization in Ghana Cossar, Frances,Houssou, Nazaire,Asante-Addo, Collins,2016-05-06 This paper characterizes the network of tractor service providers in Ghana Using the case of Ejura Sekye dumase district this research examines the implications of the adoption of mechanical technology in agriculture for farmers and institutions based on perspectives that go beyond the suppliers and users of mechanization services alone The results suggest that in addition to rising population density and favorable access to local and regional markets the current pattern of use of tractors by farmers in Ejura district emerged from favorable historical and institutional factors The current arrangement involving a network of private tractor owners providing tractor hire services to a broad set of farmers draws upon the legacy of an earlier institutional intervention and is sustained organizationally through kinship and other existing social relationships within and outside the district More over the expansion of tractor use has created a set of new roles and relationships within the network Participation in the network is affected by various factors including farmer's access to capital and knowledge experience and contacts This privately operated network is significantly more efficient and provides small scale farmers with considerably better access to plowing service than did previous government managed systems Further development of the tractor service sector is likely to improve the quality of mechanization offered to smallholder farmers enhance bargaining power for farmers seeking such services and reduce structural weaknesses within the network
