Methods in Protein Biochemistry Harald Tschesche, 2011-12-23 This book presents a survey of recent developments in protein biochemistry Top researchers in the field of protein biochemistry describe modern methods to address the challenges of protein purification by three phase partitioning and their folding and degradation by the functions of chaperones The significance of peptide purity for fibril formation is addressed as well as the use of target oriented peptide arrays in palliative approaches in mucoviscidose The design and application of protein epitope mimetics just as the structural resolving of the misfolding of various mutant proteins in serpinopathies enlarge our tools in resolving pathophysiological imbalances

A Plurilingual History of the Portuguese Language in the Luso-Brazilian Empire Luciane Scarato, 2023-07-21

This book investigates the diverse ways in which the Portuguese language expanded in Brazil despite the multilingual landscape that predominated before and after the arrival of the Europeans and the African diaspora Challenging the assumption that the prevalence of Portuguese was a natural consequence and foregone conclusion of colonisation the book argues that the language s expansion was as much a result of state intervention as of individual agency The growth of the Portuguese language was a tumultuous process that mirrored the power relations and conflicts between Amerindian European African and mestizo actors who shaped standardised and promoted the language within and beyond state institutions Knowing Portuguese became an identification sign of being Brazilian However a significant number of languages disappeared along the way and the book highlights that virtual language homogeneity does not imply social equality Portuguese s variants place speakers on different social levels that justify domination and inequality This research tells the history of a victorious language and other languages that left their mark on Brazilian Portuguese A Plurilingual History of the Portuguese Language in the Luso Brazilian Empire is a useful resource for scholars interested in the history and standardisation of languages Portuguese and Brazilian history and the impacts of colonisation Protein Chaperones and Protection from Neurodegenerative Diseases Stephan N. Witt, 2011-09-09 How protein chaperones protect cells from neurodegenerative diseases Including contributions from leading experts Protein Chaperones and Protection from Neurodegenerative Diseases provides an in depth exploration of how protein chaperones are involved in shielding cells from toxic aggregated or misfolded protein states that cause ALS Parkinson s and related diseases Examining how different protein chaperones ameliorate the toxicity of proteins that are known to cause neurodegenerative damage the book addresses both research and clinical perspectives on chaperone and anti chaperone properties The intersection of molecular chaperones and neurodegeneration is an intensely studied area partly because of the potential for manipulating the expression of molecular chaperones to thwart the progression of debilitating diseases and partly because of the ever aging

From gene expression to

complex assembly Daniel H. Gonzalez, 2014-09-10 Mitochondrial biogenesis is an extremely complex process A hint of this complexity is clearly indicated by the many steps and factors required to assemble the respiratory complexes involved in oxidative phosphorylation These steps include the expression of genes present in both the nucleus and the organelle intricate post transcriptional RNA processing events the coordinated synthesis transport and assembly of the different subunits the synthesis and assembly of co factors and finally the formation of supercomplexes or respirasomes It can be envisaged and current knowledge supports this view that plants have evolved specific mechanisms for the biogenesis of respiratory complexes For example expression of the mitochondrial genome in plants has special features not present in other groups of eukaryotes Moreover plant mitochondrial biogenesis and function should be considered in the context of the presence of the chloroplast a second organelle involved in energetic and redox metabolism It implies the necessity to discriminate between proteins destined for each organelle and requires the establishment of functional interconnections between photosynthesis and respiration In recent years our knowledge of the mechanisms involved in these different processes in plants has considerably increased As a result the many events and factors necessary for the correct expression of proteins encoded in the mitochondrial genome the cis acting elements and factors responsible for the expression of nuclear genes encoding respiratory chain components the signals and mechanisms involved in the import of proteins synthesized in the cytosol and the many factors required for the synthesis and assembly of the different redox co factors heme groups iron sulfur clusters copper centers are beginning to be recognized at the molecular level However detailed knowledge of these processes is still not complete and especially little is known about how these processes are interconnected Questions such as how the proteins once synthesized in the mitochondrial matrix are inserted into the membrane and assembled with other components including those imported from the cytosol how the expression of both genomes is coordinated and responds to changes in mitochondrial function cellular requirements or environmental cues or which factors and conditions influence the assembly of complexes and supercomplexes are still open and will receive much attention in the near future This Research Topic is aimed at establishing a collection of articles that focus on the different processes involved in the biogenesis of respiratory complexes in plants as a means to highlight recent advances In this way it intends to help to construct a picture of the whole process and not less important to expose the existing gaps that need to be addressed to fully understand how plant cells build and modulate the complex structures involved in respiration Federal Trade Commission Decisions United States.
