

OPINION WRITING

VIRTUAL CREATURES:

 Catch 'em all!

Many people have downloaded and played the Pokemon Go app. In my opinion, people should not play this game all the time since they may be tempted to use it at the wrong time. For instance, walking around to catch the creatures is distracting in other ways. For example, some people try to play while driving. This causes more distracted driving on our roads. In addition, the app can be distracting in other ways. Players become less aware of the real people and places around them. In this case, they can miss important connections with others. The Pokemon Pursuit article states that over 21 million users are playing the app. That is a lot of people who could be spending their time connecting with one another in more meaningful ways. Not only can people miss valuable connections, but they can get so caught up in playing that they do not notice their surroundings. Consequently, people who are intently playing can become a victim as predators wait for players at popular Pokemon. Being unaware while playing is definitely an example of using the app at the wrong time. These are the three main reasons that I argue that people should enjoy reality and forget the virtual world and its pocket creatures.

 Catch 'em all!

Many people have downloaded and played the Pokemon Go app. In my opinion, people should not play this game all the time since they may be tempted to use it at the wrong time. These are three main reasons why I feel people should limit their use of the app.

The app was made for people to walk around and catch virtual creatures, but it is not always being used in the way it was created. For instance, rather than walking around, some people try to play while driving! This causes more distracted driving on our roads.

In addition, the app can be distracting in other ways. Players become less aware of the real people and places around them. In this case, they can miss important connections with others. The Pokemon Pursuit article states that over 21 million users are playing the app. That is a lot of people who could be spending their time connecting with one another in more meaningful ways.
