

Methyl Bromide: The Green's Enemy

Greenhouse gases (GHGs) are pollutants resulting from human activities that trap heat in the atmosphere and thus contribute to global warming. One of the most significant GHGs is carbon dioxide (CO₂), which is released by burning fossil fuels. However, there are other GHGs, such as methane (CH₄) and nitrous oxide (N₂O), which are also released by human activities. Methyl bromide (CH₃Br) is a potent GHG that is used as a fumigant to control pests in agriculture. It is also used in the production of certain chemicals. Methyl bromide is a very effective fumigant, but it is also a very potent GHG. It has a global warming potential (GWP) of 117, which means that it is 117 times more effective than CO₂ at trapping heat in the atmosphere. This makes methyl bromide a very dangerous pollutant. It is also a very toxic substance, and it can cause serious health problems if inhaled. In 2005, the Montreal Protocol was amended to phase out the use of methyl bromide by 2015. This was done because of the environmental damage caused by this substance. The amendment was a significant step towards reducing the use of GHGs, but it was not enough. We need to do more to reduce the use of GHGs and to protect the environment.

In this task, you will study an historical document that describes the use of methyl bromide in agriculture. You will also study a modern document that describes the use of methyl bromide in agriculture. You will compare the two documents and you will write a report on your findings.

Task 1: Reading the historical document. Read the historical document and answer the questions.

The document is a report from the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) dated 1905.

Questions: 1. What is the title of the document? 2. What is the author's name?

Answers:

1. The title of the document is "Report on the use of methyl bromide as a fumigant in agriculture".
2. The author's name is "United States Department of Agriculture".
3. The document is a report from the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) dated 1905.
4. The document describes the use of methyl bromide as a fumigant in agriculture.
5. The document states that methyl bromide is a very effective fumigant, but it is also a very potent greenhouse gas.
6. The document states that the use of methyl bromide should be limited to the minimum necessary to control pests.
7. The document states that the use of methyl bromide should be stopped as soon as possible.
