

QUESTION

QUESTION: What is the difference between a corporation and a partnership?

A corporation is a legal entity that is separate from its owners. It has its own legal identity, can sue and be sued, and can own property. A partnership is a legal entity that is not separate from its owners. It has no legal identity of its own, and the partners are jointly and severally liable for the debts of the partnership.

Corporations are subject to double taxation. First, the corporation pays taxes on its profits. Then, the shareholders pay taxes on the dividends they receive. Partnerships are not subject to double taxation. The partnership itself pays taxes on its profits, and the partners pay taxes on their share of the profits.
