with the construction of frameworks of listening task characteristics and communicative listening ability. Subsequently, based on a survey of Chinese college students' English listening needs and an analysis of listening tasks in influential English listening course books and public tests (CLCT 4 and CLCT 6), test specifications are developed. Finally, sample papers are produced and a series of post-hoc studies are conducted to examine the difficulty and usefulness of the newly developed notes completion task type in two CLCT tests. As an example of successful integration of communicative testing theories and test construction practice, this research provides valuable insights into listening test development for other large scale tests.
