Karamanski, 1989 Examines the interplay between men and technology in the lumbering of Michigan's rugged Upper Peninsula In Deep Woods Frontier Theodore J Karamanski examines the interplay between men and technology in the lumbering of Michigan's rugged Upper Peninsula Three distinct periods emerged as the industry evolved The pine era was a rough pioneering time when trees were felled by axe and floated to ports where logs were loaded on schooners for shipment to large cities. When the bulk of the pine forests had been cut, other entrepreneurs saw opportunity in the unexploited stands of maple and birch and harnessed the railroad to transport logs. Finally in the pulpwood era, weed trees despised by previous loggers are cut by chain saw and moved by skidder and truck. Narrating the history of Michigan's forest industry, Karamanski provides a dynamic study of an important part of the Upper Peninsula's economy. Pontiac and the Indian Uprising Howard Henry Peckham, 1994. Pontiac and the Indian Uprising is both informative and reflective of the attitudes that existed fifty years ago about Native Americans.

Enterprising Images John Vincent Jezierski, 2000. The story of the most prolific African American photographers in North America. From its beginnings in York, Pennsylvania in 1847 until the death of Wallace L. Goodridge in Saginaw, Michigan in 1922, the Goodridge Brothers Studio was the most significant and enduring African American photographic establishment in North America. In Enterprising Images, John Vincent Jezierski tells the story of one of America's first families of photography, documenting the history of the Goodridge studio for three quarters of a century. The existence of more than one thousand Goodridge photographs in all formats and the family's professional and personal activism enrich the portrait that emerges of this extraordinary family. Weaving photographic and regional history with the narrative of a family whose lives paralleled the social and political happenings of the country, Jezierski provides the reader with a complex family biography for those interested in regional and African American as well as photographic history. The Coast of Nowhere Michael Delp, 1997. In The Coast of Nowhere, Michael Delp explores the way rivers, lakes, and streams seep into our daily lives and into our consciousness. The organization of the text, a collection of short prose meditations and poetry, embraces the motion and rhythm of moving water. Through his poetry and prose, Delp demonstrates the way one can literally build an inner landscape out of the places of water one frequents. Having grown up on water and embraced it as a part of his being, he writes passionately about existing rivers, lakes, and streams in Michigan and uses powerful metaphors to keep these places thriving in the imagination. The collection concludes with What My Father Told Me, a powerful prose piece in which Delp reflects on the wisdom his father shared with him about the magic of water and of life during their fishing outings. Like Delp's other works, The Coast of Nowhere reveals the author's love for water and nature and captures the essence of northern Michigan's culture. Detroit in Its World Setting David Lee Poremba, 2001. Culled from a wide variety of references, Detroit in Its World Setting is a timeline that offers readers a new appreciation of Michigan history by setting life in the Motor City in the context of world affairs.
