I did not choose to become a Social Worker for glory or fame. I chose to spend my life in the field because I believe that every child deserves the right to dream of a better life. With over ten years of experience with direct home visits and administrative organization, I have seen many facets of the enormous amounts of work that people in my field go through to try and improve living conditions for children in their communities. To be able instill hope and determination is one of the most rewarding aspects about social work. With my strong work background and academic background in the area, I hope to be able to continue to serve my community through compassion and diligence.

My drive for helping families get back on their feet has taken me to many different places, from inner cities to rural farmland. I have conducted visits that have ended extremely positively; I have also had experiences which have left me sleepless with worry for weeks. I have been responsible for finding children new homes; I have also been on the administrative end, processing evaluations and making decisions about who to move and who to watch. These are all heavy responsibilities, and I pride myself on always placing the well being and future potential of families first.

My passion for ensuring the best for my clients drives me each and every day. I am not afraid of long hours, and I always do whatever it takes to get my work done. I graduated college with a degree in social work, and it has given me a strong background in understanding the root causes of many of the problems facing families in various living situations. I hope to continue my work in this field, and look forward to carrying on my strong history of dedication and determination to serving my clients.
