from Pestalozzi an Account of His Life and Work Oh how true it is that the teacher without psychology does his work as badly as an old woman doctoring Thus wrote Steinmuller in 1799 in relation to Pestalozzi s ideas Pestalozzi said I want to psychologise instruction There is still some room for a modern Pestalozzi Meantime much may be gained by a study of Pestalozzi's attempts to psychologise education. A study of origins is to a student sufficiently well prepared a great aid to the fullest grasp of pure theory for abstract science so far as it is true must proceed from and return to its simplest forms. To say the least of it he is very much to be envied or pitied who cannot still learn something from Pestalozzi. The aim of the present account of the life and work of Pestalozzi is to provide students and teachers who still study with the material for a thoughtful survey of the principles and practices of one of the greatest of the world's pioneer educators and educationists.

Pestalozzi, His Life and Work Roger de baron Guimps, 1904 Pestalozzi Roger de Guimps, 2015-07-12

Excerpt from Pestalozzi His Life and Work: The name of Pestalozzi is forever dear to the hearts of all men. For he is the first teacher to announce convincingly the doctrine that all people should be educated; that in fact education is the one good gift to give to all, whether rich or poor. The fact that all human beings, whether the favorites of fortune or otherwise, rejoice in whatever good comes to man because of his nature and independent of all accidents of birth or circumstances, makes secure this affectionate regard of all men for the hero of modern pedagogy. Education shall be a real panacea for human ills. It alone goes at the root of human misery. All other giving does not help because it more or less hinders self-help. Education intellectual and moral alone develops self-help. The weaklings of society, the moral weaklings who yield to temptation and become criminal, the intellectual weaklings who break down before the problems of life and become imbecile or insane, the weaklings in will power who can not deny themselves and save a surplus of their earnings but allow themselves to drift along on the brink of pauperism, for these weaklings education will furnish a preventive. Their children may be educated in intellect and morals and thrift.
