

RESEARCH DESIGN Community-based participatory research (CBPR) was used to develop and implement the intervention. CBPR is a collaborative approach to research that involves community members as equal partners in all phases of the research process, from problem identification to data collection, analysis, and dissemination of findings. This approach is particularly well-suited for addressing health disparities in underserved communities, as it leverages the strengths and knowledge of both researchers and community members. In this study, CBPR was used to identify the needs and preferences of the target population, develop culturally appropriate educational materials, and implement the intervention in a way that was feasible and sustainable in the community setting.
