Nippon Modern Japanese Cinema Of The 1920s And 1930s:

Nippon Modern Mitsuyo Wada-Marciano, 2008-01-01 Nippon Modern is the first intensive study of Japanese cinema in the 1920s and 1930s a period in which the country's film industry was at its most prolific and a time when cinema played a singular role in shaping Japanese modernity During the interwar period the signs of modernity were ubiquitous in Japan's urban architecture literature fashion advertising popular music and cinema The reconstruction of Tokyo following the disastrous earthquake of 1923 highlighted the extent of this cultural transformation and the film industry embraced the reconfigured space as an expression of the modern Shochiku Kamata Film Studios 1920-1936 the focus of this study was the only studio that continued filmmaking in Tokyo following the city's complete destruction Mitsuyo Wada-Marciano points to the influence of the new urban culture in Shochiku's interwar films acclaimed as modan na eiga or modern films by and for Japanese Wada-Marciano's thought-provoking examinations illustrate the reciprocal relationship between cinema and Japan's vernacular modernity what Japanese modernity actually meant to Japanese Her thorough and thoughtful analyses of dozens of films within the cultural contexts of Japan contribute to the current inquiry into non-Western vernacular modernities

Visions of Japanese Modernity Aaron Andrew Gerow, 2010

In this study Aaron Gerow focuses on the early period in which the institutional and narrational structure of Japanese cinema was in flux arguing that the transnational intertext is less important than the power laden operations by which the meaning of cinema itself was discursively defined Both progressive critics of the pure film movement and the more conservative Japanese cultural bureaucrats demanded a unitary text that suppressed the hybrid and unpredictable meanings attendant on early Japanese cinema's informal exhibition contexts Gerow points out the irony that the progressive and individualist pure film movement critics worked in concert with the Japanese state to undo the theft of Japanese cinema proposing to replace representations of Japan in Western films by exporting a Japanese cinema reformed to emulate the international norm

Magazines and the Making of Mass Culture in Japan Amy Bliss Marshall, 2019-03-14 Magazines and the Making of Mass Culture in Japan provides a detailed yet approachable analysis of the mechanisms central to the birth of mass culture in Japan by tracing the creation production and circulation of two critically important family magazines Kingu King and Ie no hikari Light of the Home These magazines served to embed new instruments of mass communication and socialization within Japanese society and created mechanisms to facilitate the dissemination of hegemonic forms of discourse in the first half of the twentieth century The amazing success of Kingu and Ie no hikari during the 1920s and 1930s not only established and normalized participation in a Japanese mass national audience a community which had previously not existed but also facilitated the rise of Japanese mass consumer culture in the postwar years Amy Bliss Marshall argues that the postwar mass national consumer in Japan is foreshadowed by the mass national audience created by family magazines of the interwar era This book narrates the development of such publications one explicitly capitalist and one outwardly agrarian based on missions with an overarching desire to create a mass audience Magazines and the Making of Mass Culture in Japan highlights the importance of the seemingly innocuous acts of mass leisure consumption of magazines and the goods advertised therein aiding our understanding of the creation and direction of a new form of social participation and understanding an essential part of not only the culture but also the politics of the interwar period
