

Winter tree

The stark framework of a deciduous tree can make a compelling painting and immediately evoke a feeling of winter. Here, I have painted in the trunk and branches with a mix of country olive and burnt umber and added a canopy of twigs.

1. Paint in the trunk and larger branches with the medium detail brush, then add the finer branches with the half-rigger.

2. Using the fan stippler and a fairly dry mix of shadow colour, start at the top of the tree and lightly stipple over the branches.

3. Working downwards and stippling lightly, complete the canopy of twigs.

The trunks and branches are prominent in this winter scene. They are softened with stippled impressions of twigs in shadow tones which help to create the wintry atmosphere.
