No Time To Say Goodbye Surviving The Suicide Of A Loved One:

No Time to Say Goodbye Carla Fine, 2011-05-11 Suicide would appear to be the last taboo Even incest is now discussed freely in popular media but the suicide of a loved one is still an act most people are unable to talk about or even admit to their closest family or friends This is just one of the many painful and paralyzing truths author Carla Fine discovered when her husband a successful young physician took his own life in December 1989 And being unable to speak openly and honestly about the cause of her pain made it all the more difficult for her to survive With No Time to Say Goodbye she brings suicide survival from the darkness into light speaking frankly about the overwhelming feelings of confusion guilt shame anger and loneliness that are shared by all survivors Fine draws on her own experience and on conversations with many other survivors as well as on the knowledge of counselors and mental health professionals She offers a strong helping hand and invaluable guidance to the vast numbers of family and friends who are left behind by the more than thirty thousand people who commit suicide each year struggling to make sense of an act that seems to them senseless and to pick up the pieces of their own shattered lives And perhaps most important for the first time in any book she allows survivors to see that they are not alone in their feelings of grief and despair

Surviving Ben's Suicide C. Shields, 2008-04 Almost fifteen years ago hikers found my college boyfriend's body on the edge of the Atlantic Ocean. He might have been lying there for three days. He had driven himself from Washington DC to Lubec, Maine, which was the easternmost point of land on the North American continent. On the second day of July 1993, he walked along trails that followed rock cliffs rising eighty feet above the ocean and shot himself in the head. It was the end of Ben's journey and the crossroads in mine. Page 4 of cover Losing a Parent to Suicide Marty Loy, Amy Boelk, 2013-09-05. The suicide of a parent has life-long consequences; few more traumatic scenarios exist, and counselors often struggle for ways to help clients deal with its effects. Few understand the pain and life-altering effects of these tragedies better than children who have experienced the suicide of a parent. Despite this, there are few texts that incorporate and evaluate the first-person accounts of grief following a suicide while advancing a method for helping. Losing a Parent to Suicide analyzes stories of parent suicides and explores the grief and coping processes that follow, discovering the strategies, methods, and modes of therapy that have empowered grieving individuals and helped them rebuild their lives.

Crisis Intervention Alan A. Cavaola, Joseph E. Colford, 2017-10-24. Crisis Intervention takes into account various environments and populations across the lifespan to provide students with practical guidelines for managing crises. Colford cover several different types of crises frequently encountered by professionals in medical school work and community settings. Models for effectively managing these crises are presented along with the authors' own step-by-step approach: the Listen, Assess, Plan, Commit (LAPC) model, giving students the freedom to select a model that best fits their personal style or a given crisis. Future mental health professionals will gain the knowledge, skills, and confidence to help their clients manage the crises they will encounter in their day-to-day lives.
