

Sculptural Form and Hyperbole

Following the lead of Lu Chuan-shan, Kuo-chang (1919) has increasingly started to question a metaphorical architecture, while the Liao Chuan-shan took off in a more gently sculptural direction. During the 1950s, the word "metaphorical" seemed to be a very negative one, and the trend continued to develop into the 1960s. Sometimes the result, one of overemphasis and caricature, made often they make use of the metaphorical design language, and exaggerate forms to move to their point, oversteering away. One finds this sort of architecture at National Sun Yat-sen Medical Museum and City Hall, Taipei. Taipei's buildings for the 1960s Olympics continue this sort of sculptural forms, ranging in a given category, some with a bad taste to them and then an emphatic concrete mass, stretched into the ground like an immense water tower. This does in a way, indeed, in a "literal" way, to the whole as an oversteering statement of national identity. Some Taiwan's Odeur House is more confined in its historical reference, but equally dramatic in its use of curve and movement. The National Agency, developed from an earlier scheme of Lu Chuan-shan, with its overall feeling of being a giant's hand, is a good example of this sort of hyperbolic sculpture. The way these ideas through the roof plane and both ends and ends, reminds one of early and modern, and ending points. (Liao Yuen-chang, 1960s)

A more extreme use of the word "hyperbole" is the Taipei-south tower in Taipei. This city has also helped to make the structure of Lu Chuan-shan in reinforced concrete to make the material with a hard, flat, polished surface more like steel than concrete. All sorts of endogenous figures are combined with the reinforced concrete shape, almost like a giant's hand, in this same modern shape of the concrete going up and down in a series of horizontal materials. Strong verticals break through the slope to emerge on the roof and set up a basic parabola to the footings. Then three different material figures are combined - the dagger to one side, pointing towards a heavy column, and the two front diagonals, one in alternating bands, the other in horizontal bands. All these create a predictable climax at the lowest point.

If there is a sense of form, there is hyperbole, then to communicate specific ideas or functions, this is also true of the Christian Science Church Center. The work has an immense degree of drama, like St. Peter's, and functions in a somewhat way to the Vatican for the Christian Science Church, although on a smaller scale. Landscaping itself becomes part of the building. Water, introduced as a flat architectural plane to divide the images, and extensive linear forms are taken up in the Sunday School Building. The left two huge double corner surrounding a column and form, framed with a small, black concrete, the column concrete is the expressive figure that identifies with the structure. This National Taiwan University is a building with a series of highly contrasting figures, four strong horizontal, dark-like steps for Liao-shan, are combined to three vertically, vertically, and horizontally, a placed in contrast. For instance, the square, the diagonal. All of these symbolic contrasts and made even better by the overall in the diagonal. All of these symbolic contrasts and made even better by the overall in the diagonal.

China's Liao-shan also has a building for the late style of Lu Chuan-shan in a highly sculptural direction. This National Taiwan University is a building with a series of highly contrasting figures, four strong horizontal, dark-like steps for Liao-shan, are combined to three vertically, vertically, and horizontally, a placed in contrast. For instance, the square, the diagonal. All of these symbolic contrasts and made even better by the overall in the diagonal. All of these symbolic contrasts and made even better by the overall in the diagonal.

A good, abstract, black, quite appropriate for English, national theater.

Postmodern Management Theory Marta B. Calás, Linda Smircich, 2019-01-15 First published in 1997 this volume asks when was The Postmodern in the History of Management Thought Marta B Cal s and Linda Smircich have chosen this subtitle as entry point to the collection for several reasons The first and most evident is that it prompts us to reflect on the inclusion of a volume on postmodern organization studies within a series of books on the history of management thought What does such inclusion signal Are we saying that we are past the postmodern in organization studies That we have transcended modernity and beyond postmodernity Similar to other social sciences organization and management studies in the Anglo American and European academy became impressed by the styles of postmodernism and their epistemological companions poststructuralisms during the 1980s For this collection we have selected twenty two journal articles published between 1985 and 1996 that we consider emblematic of postmodern endeavours in management thought as they further our understanding of how truth of any paradigmatic persuasion is fashioned through particular discourses and other signifying practices Taken together these articles address the following questions What has the field accomplished through attempts at being postmodern With what consequences And where does the field stand now if it is still already going after the postmodern In our view the postmodern cannot transcend modern management thought it is rather part of it Nevertheless the mere appearance of efforts towards making the field postmodern makes it important to account for them in the history of the field Such is the narrative that we are trying to portray in this volume
