Les Miserables II Cosette Victor Hugo,1895 Les miserables Victor Hugo,Jean E. Peyrazat,1967 Les Miserables Victor Hugo,2020-12-25 On a fine May morning last year 1861 a wayfarer the person who is telling this story was coming from Nivelles and was proceeding toward La Hulpe He was on foot and following between two rows of trees a wide paved road which undulates over a constant succession of hills that raise the road and let it fall again and form as it were enormous waves He had passed Lillois and Bois Seigneur Isaac and noticed in the west the slate covered steeple of Braine l Alleud which looks like an overturned vase He had just left behind him a wood upon a hill and at the angle of a cross road by the side of a sort of worm eaten gallows which bore the inscription Old barrier No 4 a wine shop having on its front the following notice The Four Winds chateau private coffee house About half a mile beyond this pot house he reached a small valley in which there is a stream that runs through an arch formed in the causeway The clump of trees wide spread but very green which fills the valley on one side of the road is scattered on the other over the fields and runs gracefully and capriciously toward Braine l Alleud On the right and skirting the road were an inn a four wheeled cart in front of the door a large bundle of hop poles a plough a pile of dry shrubs near a quick set hedge lime smoking in a square hole and a ladder lying along an old shed with straw partitions A girl was hoeing in a field where a large yellow bill probably of a show at some Kermesse was flying in the wind At the corner of the inn a badly paved path ran into the bushes by the side of a pond on which a flotilla of ducks was navigating The wayfarer turned into this path After proceeding about one hundred yards along a wall of the 15th century surmounted by a coping of crossed bricks he found himself in front of a large arched stone gate with a rectangular moulding in the stern style of Louis XIV supported by two flat medallions A severe facade was over this gate a wall perpendicular to the facade almost joined the gate and flanked it at a right angle On the grass plat in front of the gate lay three harrows through which the May flowers were growing pell mell The gate was closed by means of two decrepit folding doors ornamented by an old rusty hammer The sun was delightful and the branches made that gentle May rustling which seems to come from nests even more than from the wind A little bird probably in love was singing with all its might The wayfarer stooped and looked at a rather large circular excavation in the stone to the right of the gate which resembled a sphere At this moment the gates opened and a peasant woman came out She saw the wayfarer and noticed what he was looking at It was a French cannon ball that made it she said and then added What you see higher up there on the gate near a nail is the hole of a heavy shell which did not penetrate the wood What is the name of this place the wayfarer asked Hougomont said the woman
