A sepia-toned photograph of a cityscape at sunset or sunrise. The sky is a warm, hazy orange. In the foreground, several dark silhouettes of people are walking across a plaza. To the left, a large, ornate statue stands on a pedestal. In the background, a large, dark silhouette of a cathedral with multiple spires and a dome dominates the skyline. The overall mood is contemplative and historical.

The Routledge Companion to Landscape Studies Peter Howard, Ian Thompson, Emma Waterton, Mick Atha, 2018-09-03 This new edition of The Routledge Companion to Landscape Studies contains an updated and expanded selection of original chapters which explore research directions in an array of disciplines sharing a concern for landscape a term which has many uses and meanings It features 33 revised and or updated chapters and 14 entirely new chapters on topics such as the Anthropocene Indigenous landscapes challenging landscape Eurocentrism's photography and green infrastructure planning The volume is divided into four parts Experiencing landscape Landscape heritage and culture Landscape society and justice and Design and planning for landscape Collectively the book provides a critical review of the various fields related to the study of landscapes including the future development of conceptual and theoretical approaches as well as current empirical knowledge and understanding It encourages dialogue across disciplinary barriers and between academics and practitioners and reflects upon the implications of research findings for local national and international policy in relation to landscape The Companion provides a comprehensive and up to date guide to current thinking about landscapes and serves as an invaluable point of reference for scholars researchers and graduate students alike Mobilities on the Margins Björn Thorsteinsson, Katrín Anna Lund, Gunnar Thór Jóhannesson, Guðbjörg R. Jóhannesdóttir, 2023-11-15 This open access book examines places on the margins and the dynamics through which a marginal position of a place is created Specifically it explores how places mostly in sparsely populated areas often perceived as immobile and frozen in time come into being and develop through interference of everyday mobilities and creative practices that cut across the spheres of culture and nature as usually defined Through fieldwork and case studies from areas in Iceland Finland Greenland and Scotland the book's twelve chapters draw out the multiple relations through which places emerge where people compose their lives as best they can with their surroundings A special concern is to explore the links between travelling landscape and material culture and how places and margins are enacted through mobilities and creative practices of humans and other beings The emphasis on mobility disturbs the perception of a place as a bounded entity and offers a useful and necessary understanding of places as mobile and fluid Mobilities on the Margins is a novel and timely contribution to the exploration of human and more than human interactions in a world of increasingly fluid mobilities and insistent crises Landscape, Memory and History Pamela J. Stewart, Andrew Strathern, 2003-05-20 How do people perceive the land around them and how is that perception changed by history This book explores this question from an anthropological angle assessing the connections between place space identity nationalism history and memory in a variety of different settings around the world Taking historical change and memory as key themes it is a broad study that will appeal to a readership across the social sciences Contributors from North America Australia New Zealand Taiwan and Europe explore a wide variety of case studies that includes seascapes in Jamaica the Solomon Islands the forests of Madagascar Aboriginal and European notions of landscape in Australia place and identity in 19th century maps and the bogs of Ireland contemporary concerns over changing landscapes in Papua New Guinea and representations of landscape and history in the poetry of the Scottish Borders

The Nature of Magic Susan Greenwood, 2020-06-03 This book examines how and why practitioners of nature religion Western witches druids shamans seek to relate spiritually with nature through magical consciousness Magic and consciousness are concepts that are often fraught with prejudice and ambiguity respectively Greenwood develops a new theory of magical consciousness by arguing that magic ultimately has more to do with the workings of the human mind in terms of an expanded awareness than with socio cultural explanations She combines her own subjective insights gained from magical practice with practitioners in depth accounts and sustained academic theory on the process of magic She also tracks magical consciousness in philosophy myth folklore story telling and the hi tech discourse of postmodernity and asks important questions concerning nature religion s environmental credentials such as whether it is as inherently ecological as many of its practitioners claim The Handbook of Mental Health and Space Laura McGrath, Paula Reavey, 2018-09-19 The Handbook of Mental Health and Space brings together the psychosocial work on experiences of space and mental distress making explicit the links between theoretical work and clinical and community practice The change from an institutional to community care model of mental health services can be seen as a fundamental spatial change in the lives of service users and the book aims to stimulate discussion about mental healthcare spaces and their design With contributions from those involved in theorizing space those drawing on their own experiences of distress and space as well as practitioners working on the ground the book will be of interest to mental health practitioners and academics

The Cultural Context of Biodiversity Conservation Petra Maass, 2008 How are biological diversity protected areas indigenous knowledge and religious worldviews related From an anthropological perspective this book provides an introduction into the complex subject of conservation policies that cannot be addressed without recognising the encompassing relationship between discursive political economic social and ecological facets By facing these interdependencies across global national and local dynamics it draws on an ethnographic case study among Maya Q'eqchi communities living in the margins of protected areas in Guatemala In documenting the cultural aspects of landscape the study explores the coherence of diverse expressions of indigenous knowledge It intends to remind of cultural values and beliefs closely tied to subsistence activities and ritual practices that define local perceptions of the natural environment The basic idea is to illustrate that there are different ways of knowing and reasoning seeing and endowing the world with meaning which include visible material and invisible interpretative understandings These tend to be underestimated issues in international debates and may provide an alternative approach upon which conservation initiatives responsive to the needs of the humans involved should be based on

Cosmos, Earth and Nutrition Richard Thornton Smith,2013-04-03 In recent years there has been an explosion of interest in organic and biodynamic produce Although once marginal and alternative escalating concerns about the environment health food quality and animal welfare have brought organics into mainstream consciousness Biodynamics a unique development of the organic approach does not narrowly focus on agricultural techniques It was conceived as a new way of thinking about farming nutrition and the world of nature allowing for a revitalized relationship with the living soil the elemental world and the cosmos Originating from a series of eight lectures given by Dr Rudolf Steiner in 1924 biodynamics broadens the outlook of agriculture and the science behind it leading to a holistic perspective that incorporates astronomical rhythms and unique preparations for plants and earth The author describes the foundations on which not only biodynamics but also the wider organic movement is based He builds bridges between mainstream science and Steiner's insights making it easier for the wider organic and ecological movement to approach biodynamic concepts and practise This book has much to offer to the beginner as well as to those already involved with biodynamics Its broad range of topics including the ecology of the farm organism food quality and nutrition community supported agriculture planetary influences seed quality and the vitality of water contribute to a deeper understanding of the subject The author is also concerned to promote innovation so that biodynamics moves with the times An appendix includes details for contacting various elements of the biodynamic world

DR RICHARD THORNTON SMITH was formerly a geography professor at the University of Leeds specializing in soil science environment and conservation Widely travelled he has a long standing interest in indigenous and sustainable farming He was introduced to the work of Rudolf Steiner at an early age although his full involvement with biodynamics dates from 1990 when he began to participate in training programmes and workshops at Emerson College Sussex In 1996 he began a biodynamic extension programme in Sri Lanka for which he published a book most recently updated in 2007 Since 2001 he has been an inspector for the Biodynamic Association's Demeter and Organic Certification in the UK In 2003 he produced an edited selection of Steiner's work relating to agriculture He is currently a council member of the Biodynamic Agricultural Association and lives in Ross on Wye Herefordshire
