Hibbing, Kevin B. Smith, John R. Alford, 2013-09-23 Buried in many people and operating largely outside the realm of conscious thought are forces inclining us toward liberal or conservative political convictions Our biology predisposes us to see and understand the world in different ways not always reason and the careful consideration of facts These predispositions are in turn responsible for a significant portion of the political and ideological conflict that marks human history With verve and wit renowned social scientists John Hibbing Kevin

Smith and John Alford pioneers in the field of biopolitics present overwhelming evidence that people differ politically not just because they grew up in different cultures or were presented with different information Despite the oft heard longing for consensus unity and peace the universal rift between conservatives and liberals endures because people have diverse psychological physiological and genetic traits These biological differences influence much of what makes people who they are including their orientations to politics Political disputes typically spring from the assumption that those who do not agree with us are shallow misguided uninformed and ignorant Predisposed suggests instead that political opponents simply experience process and respond to the world differently It follows then that the key to getting along politically is not the ability of one side to persuade the other side to see the error of its ways but rather the ability of each side to see that the other is different not just politically but physically Predisposed will change the way you think about politics and partisan conflict As a bonus the book includes a Left Right 20 Questions game to test whether your predispositions lean liberal or conservative

Opportunities and Challenges for Wild Bee Conservation Kris Braman, Michael D. Ulyshen, 2025-01-06 Conserving pollinators in anthropogenic habitats of all descriptions is critically important Often we consider single system dynamics yet pollinators move readily between land uses so diverse pollinator communities in urban forest or orchard settings e g have the potential to benefit neighboring habitats including crops Pollination services provided by insects and other animals are critical to the reproductive success of many plants in a diversity of environments Conserving and maintaining a diverse assemblage of wild bees is essential for healthy and functioning ecosystems In addition improving conditions for pollinators in urban areas is likely to improve the quality of life for human inhabitants and will provide opportunities for children to develop a sense of connection with nature Understanding the biology and ecology of wild bees in diverse settings is the foundation of conservation Therefore understanding the biology and ecology of wild bees and the factors influencing their abundance and diversity across multiple systems to inform conservation efforts is the goal Recent advances find that forests and forest remnants are critically important to global pollinator diversity and can enhance pollinator diversity in adjacent areas including crops This research topic will address the opportunities and challenges for wild bee conservation across diverse land use types MD Test
