Modeling The Departure Of Military Pilots From The Services:

Modeling the Departure of Military Pilots from the Service Marc N. Elliott, Kanika Kapur, Carole Roan Gresenz, 2004 High numbers of voluntary departures from the services by military pilots have periodically caused considerable concern among military administrators and policymakers both recently and in previous periods of high attrition In this study the authors explore some determinants of the fixed wing airplane pilot attrition problem among male pilots in the Air Force Navy and Marine Corps and the responsiveness of attrition to changes in military compensation The authors estimated a pilot attrition model that examines the impact on attrition from factors such as compensation civilian airline hiring and deployment This study produced several noteworthy findings including 1 Increases in major airline hiring tend to increase military pilot voluntary departures to a great degree in the Air Force and to a lesser extent in the Navy 2 although attrition was found to be quite responsive to bonus pay counteracting a sizable increase in major airline hiring could be costly particularly for the Air Force 3 the significant Impact of civilian major airline hiring on pilot attrition calls for a pilot management plan that will enable the armed forces to respond to strong outside in

Modeling the Departure of Military Pilots From the Services, 2004 High numbers of voluntary departures from the services by military pilots have periodically caused considerable concern among military administrators and policymakers both recently and in previous periods of high attrition In this study we explore some determinants of the fixed wing airplane pilot attrition problem among male pilots in the Air Force Navy and Marine Corps and the responsiveness of attrition to changes in military compensation We estimated a pilot attrition model that examines the impact on attrition from factors such as compensation deployment voluntary separation programs and civilian airline hiring Data sources include military personnel files and information on civilian airline hiring and compensation The model is simplified in order to abstract from complex modeling issues such as the existence of multiple decision points and bonus contracts of differing lengths We focus on voluntary attrition within a few years of the end of the initial service obligation Although we were able to verify the insensitivity of our results to a number of specification and sample checks our results do depend on a number of simplifying assumptions that may not be fully testable Results from the pilot attrition model should therefore be interpreted in light of these assumptions

The Military Pension, Compensation, and Retirement of U.S. Air Force Pilots John A. Ausink, David A. Wise, 1993 This paper uses the option value model of Stock and Wise to analyze the departure patterns of a sample of pilots in the United States Air Force Pilot compensation and the military pension are described as are some details of the option value model and two other models the Annualized Cost of Leaving ACOL model which is used by the Department of Defense and a variant of a dynamic programming model proposed by Daula and Moffitt The option value model captures departure behavior much better than the ACOL model and substantially better than the dynamic programming model The superiority of the option value model to the dynamic programming formulation raises the possibility that individual decision making may not always be best modeled by a formulation that is intended to capture correct economic financial calculations This is consistent with findings by Lumsdaine Stock and Wise for civilians in a Fortune 500 firm Advances in the Economics of Aging David A. Wise,2007-12-01 This volume presents innovative research on issues of importance to the well being of older persons labor market behavior health care housing and living arrangements and saving and wealth Specific topics include the effect of labor market rigidities on the employment of older workers the effect on retirement of the availability of continuation coverage benefits and the influence of the prospective payment system PPS on rising Medicare costs Also considered are the effects of health and wealth on living arrangement decisions the incentive effects of employer provided pension plans the degree of substitution between 401 k plans and other employer provided retirement saving arrangements and the extent to which housing wealth determines how much the elderly save and consume Two final studies use simulations that describe the implications of stylized economic models of behavior among the elderly This timely volume will be of interest to anyone concerned with the economics of aging Model 1 Users Manual for the Flight Service Automation System ,1986 AERO TRADER & CHOPPER SHOPPER, MARCH 1996 Causey Enterprises, LLC, CAA Journal ,1950 A Model of the Air Force Pilot's Separation Decision Craig Eugene College,1989 Federal Register ,1983-10-24 U.S. Air Services ,1922 AERO TRADER & CHOPPER SHOPPER, APRIL 1996 Causey Enterprises, LLC, AERO TRADER & CHOPPER SHOPPER, FEBRUARY 1996 Causey Enterprises, LLC, Journal of the House of Representatives of the United States United States.
