Models Of Decision Making Models Of Decision Making:

Analytical Models For Decision-Making Sanderson, Colin, Gruen, Reinhold, 2006-03-01 Health care systems are complex and as a result it is often unclear what the effects of changes in policy or service provision might be At the same time resources for health care tend to be in short supply which means that public health practitioners have to make difficult decisions This book describes the quantitative and qualitative methods that can help decision makers to structure and clarify difficult problems and to explore the implications of pursuing different options The accompanying CD ROM provides the opportunity to try out some of the proposed solutions The book examines Models and decision making in health care Methods for clarifying complex decisions Models for service planning and resource allocation Modelling for evaluating changes in systems

Multiperson Decision Making Models Using Fuzzy Sets and Possibility Theory J. Kacprzyk, Mario Fedrizzi, 2012-12-06 Decision making is certainly a very crucial component of many human activities It is therefore not surprising that models of decisions play a very important role not only in decision theory but also in areas such as operations Research Management science social Psychology etc The basic model of a decision in classical normative decision theory has very little in common with real decision making It portrays a decision as a clear cut act of choice performed by one individual decision maker and in which states of nature possible actions results and preferences are well and crisply defined The only component in which uncertainty is permitted is the occurrence of the different states of nature for which probabilistic descriptions are allowed These probabilities are generally assumed to be known numerically i e as single probabilities or as probability distribution functions Extensions of this basic model can primarily be conceived in three directions 1 Rather than a single decision maker there are several decision makers involved This has led to the areas of game theory team theory and group decision theory 2 The preference or utility function is not single valued but rather vector valued This extension is considered in multiattribute utility theory and in multicriteria analysis 3

Goal-based Decision Making Stephen Slade, 2013-06-17 This work presents a goal based model of decision making in which the relative priorities of goals drive the decision process a psychological alternative to traditional decision analysis Building on the work of Schank and Abelson the author uses goals as the basis for a model of interpersonal relations which permits decisions to incorporate personal and adopted goals in a uniform manner The theory is modelled on the VOTE computer program which simulates Congressional roll call voting decisions The VOTE program expands traditional decision making and simulation models by providing not only a choice but also a natural language explanation in either English or French It simulates real members of Congress voting on real bills and producing reasonable explanations The program is consistent with much of the descriptive political science literature on Congressional decision making and provides an explicit model of political issues relationships and strategies that converge in voting behavior In developing the VOTE program the author draws on his own practical experience in politics from four presidential campaigns and the White House Given the underlying psychological basis of the program

VOTE can be extended to other decision making domains different from politics Another use for the program is to simulate business decisions such as securities analysis as well as mundane decision making such as choosing a college or deciding whether to get a Mohawk haircut

Models of Decision-Making Paul Weirich,2015-02-05 Classical decision theory evaluates entire worlds specified so as to include everything a decision maker cares about Thus applying decision theory requires performing computations far beyond an ordinary decision maker s ability In this book Paul Weirich explains how individuals can simplify and streamline their choices He shows how different parts of options intrinsic temporal spatiotemporal causal are separable so that we can know what difference one part makes to the value of an option regardless of what happens in the other parts He suggests that the primary value of options is found in basic intrinsic attitudes towards outcomes desires aversions or indifferences And using these two facts he argues that we need only compare small parts of the options we face in order to make a rational decision This important book will interest readers in decision theory economics and the behavioral sciences

Human-Centric Decision-Making Models for Social Sciences Peijun Guo,Witold Pedrycz,2013-11-01 The volume delivers a wealth of effective methods to deal with various types of uncertainty inherently existing in human centric decision problems It elaborates on comprehensive decision frameworks to handle different decision scenarios which help use effectively the explicit and tacit knowledge and intuition model perceptions and preferences in a more human oriented style The book presents original approaches and delivers new results on fundamentals and applications related to human centered decision making approaches to business economics and social systems Individual chapters cover multi criteria multiattribute decision making decision making with prospect theory decision making with incomplete probabilistic information granular models of decision making and decision making realized with the use of non additive measures New emerging decision theories being presented as along with a wide spectrum of ongoing research make the book valuable to all interested in the field of advanced decision making The volume self contained in its nature offers a systematic exposure to the concepts design methodologies and detailed algorithms A prudent balance between the theoretical studies and applications makes the material suitable for researchers and graduate students in information computer sciences psychology cognitive science economics system engineering operation research and management science risk management public and social policy
