Online Communities Online Communities:

Building Successful Online Communities Robert E. Kraut, Paul Resnick, 2016-02-12 How insights from the social sciences including social psychology and economics can improve the design of online communities Online communities are among the most popular destinations on the Internet but not all online communities are equally successful For every flourishing Facebook there is a moribund Friendster not to mention the scores of smaller social networking sites that never attracted enough members to be viable This book offers lessons from theory and empirical research in the social sciences that can help improve the design of online communities The authors draw on the literature in psychology economics and other social sciences as well as their own research translating general findings into useful design claims They explain for example how to encourage information contributions based on the theory of public goods and how to build members commitment based on theories of interpersonal bond formation For each design claim they offer supporting evidence from theory experiments or observational studies

Combatting Toxic Online Communities Amie Jane Leavitt, 2016-07-15 Today we can find an online community to suit almost any interest we may have And yet these communities carry an element of menace The anonymity associated with online communities allows particularly vicious interplay where people can pile on others with virtually zero consequences Using current examples from the news and connecting this phenomenon to historical incidents like the Salem witch trials this fascinating resource examines an interesting time in the world and grounds it with practical guidelines for being a responsible member of an online community

Web 2.0: User-Generated Content in Online Communities Timo Beck, 2007-08-22 Inhaltsangabe Abstract The number of Internet users is steadily growing Currently 55% of all Germans go online on a regular basis compared to 28% in 2001 and there is no end in sight to this upward trend Today's young people are growing up with the Internet and the Internet is growing up with them It is evolving the term for what is happening now in cyberspace is Web 2.0 an expression coined at a conference in 2004 by the web business mogul Tim O'Reilly to describe a new evolutionary phase of the Internet The phrase is shorthand for the second Internet boom which now follows the one that ended in late 2001 with the biggest destruction of investors capital in history The bursting of the so called dotcom bubble 6 years ago marked a turning point for the web At that time many people concluded that the Internet was over hyped Bubbles and the subsequent shakeouts however appear to be a common feature of all technological revolutions They have always marked the point at which real success stories developed their full scope and showed their strength The defining feature of the current evolutionary phase of the web is that established companies are giving huge amounts of money to start ups which have three things in common they have grown from nowhere with astonishing speed they often have no revenue stream to speak of and most of their content is produced by their users Google paid 1.65bn for the acquisition of Youtube Rupert Murdoch's News Corp bought Myspace for 580m and Holzbrinck fully took over Studivz net for about 85m to give just a few examples of recent Web 2.0 deals Consequently many people are asking a legitimate question What makes these so called online communities so valuable The answer to this question may be surprising to many people The deployed technologies are more or less the same as 6 years ago but what all these new sites share is a new approach to creating things user generated content in the jargon The Internet is no longer about corporations telling users what to do think or buy it is about the content people create themselves Participation not publishing is the keyword In online communities people s private lives and experiences dominate conversations sex destinies misfortune and luck holidays pets sports music and lots of everyday life More people use the Internet to participate in online communities than to make purchase transactions 84% of Internet users
