Open Cities | Open Data Scott Hawken, Hoon Han, Chris Pettit, 2019-09-26
Today the world's largest economies and corporations trade in data and its products to generate value in new disruptive markets
Within these markets vast streams of data are often inaccessible or untapped and controlled by powerful monopolies
Counter to this exclusive use of data is a promising world wide open data movement promoting freely accessible information to share reuse and redistribute
The provision and application of open data has enormous potential to transform exclusive technocratic smart cities into inclusive and responsive open cities
This book argues that those who contribute urban data should benefit from its production
Like the city itself the information landscape is a public asset produced through collective effort attention and resources
People produce data through their engagement with the city creating digital footprints through social media mobility applications and city sensors
By opening up data there is potential to generate greater value by supporting unforeseen collaborations spontaneous urban innovations and solutions and improved decision making insights
Yet achieving more open cities is made challenging by conflicting desires for urban anonymity sociability privacy and transparency
This book engages with these issues through a variety of critical perspectives and presents strategies tools and case studies that enable this transformation
