 130 miles from east to west From the badlands the historically notorious eastern Valle de Ju rez to the Puerto Palomas port of entry at Columbus New Mexico this area has become more militarized and politicized than ever before Mike Tapia examines this region by exploring a century of historical developments through a criminological lens and by studying the diverse subcultures on both sides of the law Tapia looks extensively at the role of history and geography on criminal subculture the relationship How for example might a person s criminal activity adversely affect their health or their risk of exposure to HIV infection The issues addressed in this volume are at the heart of policy in both public health and criminal justice The authors track a four fold connection between the two fields exploring the mental and physical health of incarcerated populations the health consequences of crime substance abuse violence and risky sexual behaviors the extent to which high crime rates are linked to poor health outcomes in the same neighborhood and the results of public health interventions among traditional criminal justice populations As well as exploring these urgent issues this anthology features a wealth of remarkable interdisciplinary contributions that see public health researchers focusing on crime while criminologists attend to public health issues The papers provide empirical data tracking for example the repercussions on public health of a fear of crime among residents of high crime neighborhoods and the correlations between HIV status and outcomes and an individual s history of criminal activity Providing social scientists and policy makers with vital pointers on how the criminal justice and
