Online Chicken Quetzal Incommensurate Ontologies Guatemalas:

The Chicken and the Quetzal Paul Kockelman, 2015-12-30 In The Chicken and the Quetzal Paul Kockelman theorizes the creation measurement and capture of value by recounting the cultural history of a village in Guatemala's highland cloud forests and its relation to conservation movements and ecotourism In 1990 a group of German ecologists founded an NGO to help preserve the habitat of the resplendent quetzal the strikingly beautiful national bird of Guatemala near the village of Chicacnab The ecotourism project they established in Chicacnab was meant to provide new sources of income for its residents so they would abandon farming methods that destroyed quetzal habitat The pressure on villagers to change their practices created new values and forced negotiations between indigenous worldviews and the conservationists goals Kockelman uses this story to offer a sweeping theoretical framework for understanding the entanglement of values as they are interpreted and travel across different and often incommensurate ontological worlds His theorizations apply widely to studies of the production of value the changing ways people make value portable and value's relationship to ontology affect and selfhood

Unsustainable Matthew Archer, 2024-02-06 A behind the scenes look at how corporate and financial actors enforce a business friendly approach to global sustainability In recent years companies have felt the pressure to be transparent about their environmental impact Large documents containing summaries of yearly emissions rates carbon output and utilized resources are shared on companies social media pages websites and employee briefings in a bid for public confidence in corporate responsibility And yet Matthew Archer argues these metrics are often just hollow symbols Unsustainable contends with the world of big banks and multinational corporations where sustainability begins and ends with measuring and reporting Drawing on five years of research among sustainability professionals in the US and Europe Unsustainable shows how this depoliticizing tendency to frame sustainability as a technical issue enhances and obscures corporate power while doing little if anything to address the root causes of the climate crisis and issues of social inequality Through this obsession with metrics and indicators the adage that you can't manage what you can't measure transforms into a belief that once you've measured social and environmental impacts the market will simply manage them for you The book draws on diverse sources of evidence ethnographic fieldwork among a wide array of sustainability professionals interviews with private bankers and apocalyptic science fiction and features analyses of name brand companies including Volkswagen Unilever and Nestl Making the case for the limits of measuring and reporting Archer seeks to mobilize alternative approaches Through an intersectional lens incorporating Black and Indigenous theories of knowledge power and value he offers a vision of sustainability that aims to be more effective and more socially and ecologically just
