Movements Sandra Grey, Marian Sawer, 2008-04-24 Written by leading women's movement scholars this book is the first to systematically apply the idea of social movement abeyance to differing national and international contexts Its starting point is the idea that the women's movement is over an idea promoted in the media and encouraged by scholarship that regards disruptive action as a defining element of social movements It goes on to compare the trajectories over the past 40 years of women's movements in Australia Canada Japan Korea New Zealand the United Kingdom and the United States Finally it looks at the extension of feminist activism into supranational and subnational institutions the global and the local and into cyberspace Comparing these diverse sites of political and social action illuminates some of the major opportunities and constraints that have impacted upon women's movements It advances our understanding of the lifecycles of social movements by examining the differing ways in which women's movements operate and sustain themselves over time and space ways that often differ from those of male led movements The book also engages with the question of whether there is an on going women's movement with sufficient continuity to warrant description as such by presenting the voices of young activists East and West Filling an important gap in social movement research this book will be of interest to sociologists political scientists and gender studies scholars and researchers Contemporary Global Women's Movement Shobh Jain, 2014

International Women's Year Jocelyn Olcott, 2017-06-01 A rich narrative of the 1975 International Women's Year Conference in Mexico City where the idiom sisterhood is powerful was fractured by global feminism

The Global Red Circle Kim Andrews, 2014-05-01 The Global Red Circle Standing in Truth Unleashing Our Most Powerful Selves is a collection of twenty heartfelt compelling and life affirming letters by and about women Its mission is to build a global sisterhood through which women can heal and nurture themselves and each other through the sharing of their wisdom The Global Red Circle reflects a global community of women who pledge to take full responsibility for their expression of womanhood to respect and nurture themselves and their sisters worldwide and to do the work they are called to do while fully expressing their most powerful selves The story of how this book came to be reflects the power the Global Red Circle movement has to effect change and improve the lives of women everywhere
