Masuda,2014-04-01 Mindfulness and Acceptance in Multicultural Competency explores the nuances of applying acceptance and mindfulness therapy to clients from diverse cultural and ethnic groups This book addresses the question of whether acceptance and mindfulness treatments such as acceptance and commitment therapy ACT cognitive behavioral therapy CBT and dialectical behavioral therapy DBT can be applied equally to different cultures what kind of adjustments are necessary when applying these techniques and discusses how values are often culturally biased and individualistic Integrating Service Learning and Multicultural Education in Colleges and Universities Carolyn R. O'Grady,2014-04-08 The focus of this book is on the ways in which service learning and multicultural education can and should be integrated so that each may be strengthened and consequently have greater effect on educational and social conditions It offers a significant attempt to forge a dialogue among practitioners of service learning and multicultural education The overriding theme is that service learning without a focused attention to the complexity of racial and cultural differences can reinforce the dominant cultural ideology but academic work that seeks to deconstruct these norms without providing a community based touchstone isolates students and schools from the realities of the larger communities of which they are part Although the chapter authors provide varied perspectives on the benefits and challenges of integrating multicultural education and service learning they all are committed to a vision of education that synthesizes both action and reflection None of the authors pretend to have all the answers to what this integration should look like nor do they believe that today s social problems are easily ameliorated through education Rather they share theories practices failures and triumphs in order to further the conversation about the importance of aligning what educators say about the world and how they act in and on it These authors share the view that multicultural education is truly transformative for students only when it includes a community action component and likewise service learning is truly a catalyst for change only when it is done from a multicultural and socially just perspective It is their hope that the ideas explored in this book will further the work of those who share a commitment to the integration of action and reflection Promoting Inclusive Systems for Migrants in Education Paul Downes,Jim Anderson,Alireza Behtoui,Lore Van Praag,2024-03-12 This novel contribution examines the lived experiences of migrants in education in various international contexts exploring common school system features that promote students inclusion and challenge their exclusion With a range of international contributions and case studies from Canada the US Hong Kong Japan and Europe the book offers critical theoretically innovative understandings examining national policies and practices to develop reforms focusing on agency heterogeneity and systems of relational spaces for migrant youth Chapters engage with discussions around differentiated needs of marginalised and vulnerable groups as well as the importance of superdiversity in studying and developing inclusive systems for migrant youth in education Offering unique insights the book outlines a framework for the promotion of inclusive school systems that ultimately look to create quality learning environments that prevent discrimination and support students holistic needs It will be of great interest to researchers academics and postgraduate students in the fields of sociology of education philosophy of education psychology of education teacher education and social policy Chapter 4 of this book is freely available as a downloadable Open Access PDF at <http://www.taylorfrancis.com> under a Creative Commons Attribution CC BY 4.0 license This work was supported by an Economic and Social Research Council grant number ES/S015752/1
