Windows of Opportunity Miriam J. Anderson, 2016 In 1915 women from over thirty countries met in The Hague to express opposition to the war and propose ways to end it The delegates called for three things for women to be present at all international peace conferences a women s only peace conference to be convened alongside any official negotiations and the establishment of universal suffrage While these demands went unmet at the time contemporary women s groups continue to seek to participate in peace negotiations and to have language promoting gender equality inserted into all peace agreements In fact between 1989 and 2005 almost half of all peace processes led to agreements with references to women Many of these clauses addressed compensation for wartime gender based violence and guarantees for women s participation in the post conflict transitional period Others included electoral quotas and changes to inheritance legislation Curiously the language used is fairly consistent across agreements and that is because it reflects international women's rights norms rather than more local norms. But why is it that if a peace agreement's primary objective is to end conflict some include potentially controversial provisions about gender that might delay or complicate reaching an agreement? Why do these provisions echo international norms when we might expect each agreement to reflect varying cultural norms? And which factors make it more likely that women's rights will appear in peace agreements? Windows of Opportunity answers these questions by looking at peace negotiations in Burundi, Macedonia and Northern Ireland. It looks at the key actors in negotiations, what prompts their mobilization, their objectives, their strategies, how they construct clauses for inclusion in peace agreements, how women's roles in the state are impacted in the wake of peace agreements, and how these variables increase the likelihood of success for women's movements.

Contemporary Peacemaking Roger Mac Ginty, Anthony Wanis-St. John, 2022-01-12. This fully updated third edition of Contemporary Peacemaking is a state-of-the-art overview of peacemaking in relation to contemporary civil wars. It examines best and worst practice in relation to peace processes and peace accords. The contributing authors are a mix of leading academics and practitioners with expert knowledge of a wide array of cases and techniques. The book provides a mix of theory and concept building along with insights into ongoing cases of peace processes and post accord peacebuilding. The chapters make clear that peacemaking is a dynamic field with new practices in peacemaking techniques, changes to the international peace support architecture, and greater awareness of key issues such as gender and development after peace accords. The book is mindful of the intersection between top-down and bottom-up approaches to peace and how formal and institutionalized peace accords need to be lived and enacted by communities on the ground.

Trauma-sensitivity and Peacebuilding Lydia Wanja Gitau, 2017-08-18. This book identifies a gap in peacebuilding theory and practice in terms of sensitivity to trauma and its impact on the survivors of war and other mass violence. The research focuses on the traumatic experiences and perceptions of peace of South Sudanese refugees in Kakuma Refugee Camp in Northwestern Kenya. It further explores the possibilities for peacebuilding identified in these perceptions. A lack of sensitivity to the trauma experienced by the survivors of conflict and mass violence leads to interventions that are at best removed from and at worst detrimental to the welfare of the survivors. Interventions that take into consideration the complex and multifaceted ways in which the survivors experience and respond to the traumatic events encourage capacities for resilience in the survivors, engage the creative arts in peacebuilding, and emphasise the centrality of community and relationships. These are seen to assist the survivors in recovery from trauma and to facilitate peacebuilding. Diverse anecdotes and real-life stories from the research participants. The journey as a recurring motif throughout the book, weaved in a clear, easy-to-read style of writing.

Understanding Insurgent Resilience Andrew Henshaw, 2020-07-30. This book examines terrorist and insurgent organisations and seeks to understand how such groups persist for so long while introducing a new strategic doctrine for countering these organisations. The work discusses whether familial or meritocratic insurgencies are more resilient to counterinsurgency pressures. It argues that it is not the type of organization that determines resilience but rather the efficiency functions of social capital and trust which have different natures and forms within them It finds that while familial insurgencies can challenge incumbents from the start they weaken over time whereas meritocracies will generally strengthen The book examines four of the most enduring and lethal insurgent organizations the Haqqani Network in Afghanistan Lashkar e Taiba in Pakistan Jemaah Islamiyah in Indonesia and the Abu Sayyaf in the Philippines The author breaks down each group into its formative strengths and vulnerabilities and presents a bespoke model of strategic counterintelligence that can be used to manipulate degrade and destroy each organization This book will be of much interest to students of counterinsurgency terrorism intelligence security and defence studies in general Strategy

functioning states in countries such as Iraq or Afghanistan have inspired questions about whether statebuilding projects are at all viable or whether they make the lives of their intended beneficiaries better or worse In this groundbreaking book Oliver Richmond asks why statebuilding has been so hard to achieve and argues that a large part of the problem has been

Westerners failure to understand or engage with what local peoples actually want and need He interrogates the liberal peacebuilding industry asking what it assumes what it is getting wrong and how it could be more effective Globalisierung und Vergangenheitsbearbeitung Dominik Pfeiffer, 2015-03-11 Dominik Pfeiffer entwickelt ein neues Theoriewerkzeug zur
