situations of their authors The Routledge Introduction to American Women Writers Wendy Martin, Sharone Williams, 2016-04-28 The Routledge Introduction to American Women Writers considers the important literary historical cultural and intellectual contexts of American women authors from the seventeenth century to the present and provides readers with an analysis of current literary trends and debates in women's literature This accessible and engaging guide covers a variety of essential topics such as the transatlantic and transnational origins of American women's literary traditions the colonial period and the Puritans the early national period and the rhetoric of independence the nineteenth century and the Civil War the twentieth century including modernism the Harlem Renaissance and the Civil Rights era trends in twenty first century American women's writing feminism gender and sexuality regionalism domesticity ethnicity and multiculturalism The volume examines the ways in which women writers from diverse racial social and cultural backgrounds have shaped American literary traditions giving particular attention to the ways writers worked inside outside and around the strictures of their cultural and historical moments to create space for women's voices and experiences as a vital part of American life Addressing key contemporary and theoretical debates this comprehensive overview presents a highly readable narrative of the development of literature by American women and offers a crucial range of perspectives on American literary history

African Women Writers and the Politics of Gender Sadia Zulfiqar, 2016-09-23 This work examines the work of a group of African women writers who have emerged over the last forty years While figures such as Chinua Achebe Ben Okri and Wole Soyinka are likely to be the chief focus of discussions of African writing female authors have been at the forefront of fictional interrogations of identity formation and history In the work of authors such as Mariama B Senegal Buchi Emecheta Nigeria Chimamanda Ngozi Adichie Nigeria Tsitsi Dangarembga Zimbabwe and Leila Aboulela Sudan there is a clear attempt to subvert the tradition of male writing where the female characters are often relegated to the margins of the culture and confined to the domestic private sphere This body of work has already generated a significant number of critical responses including readings that draw on gender politics and colonialism but it is still very much a minor literature and most mainstream western feminism has not sufficiently processed it The purpose of this book is three fold First it draws together some of the most important and influential African women writers of the post war period and looks at their work separately and together in terms of a series of themes and issues including marriage family polygamy religion childhood and education Second it demonstrates how African literature produced by women writers is explicitly and polemically engaged with urgent political issues that have both local and global resonance the veil Islamophobia and a distinctively African brand of feminist critique Third it revisits Fredric Jameson's claim that all third world texts are national allegories and considers these novels by African women in relation to Jameson's claim arguing that their work has complicated Jameson's assumptions

Granny Midwives and Black Women Writers Valerie Lee, 1996 Midwives women healers and root workers have been central figures in the African American folk traditions Particularly in Black communities in the rural south these women served vital social cultural and political functions It was believed that they possessed magical powers they negotiated the barrier between life and death and were often regarded as the knower in a community Today even as medical science has discredited or superseded their power granny midwives have resurfaced as pivotal characters in the narratives of contemporary African American literature GrannyMidwives and Black Women Writersexamines the lives of realgranny midwives and other healers through oral narratives ethnographic research and documentation and considers them in tandem with their fictional counterparts in the work of Toni Morrison Gloria Naylor Alice Walker and others Emotions in Muslim Hausa Women's Fiction Umma Aliyu Musa,2019-03-07 This book examines the emotions expressed in Hausa women s prose fiction in northern Nigeria showing how Hausa Muslim women writers use fiction in their indigenous language to demonstrate and express their anger about the problems they face in a patriarchal society Umma Aliyu Musa shows how Hausa women authors use literature as a subversive instrument to voice their anger and draw attention to their plight and what they perceive to be unfair traditional authority in a male dominated society Their stories about women protagonists who rebel against existing traditional structures enable women readers to understand the anger experienced by other women who have gone through similar situations Issues at the heart of these women s narratives include forced marriage polygyny family honor and the effects of love The authors use of metaphorical expressions of anger particularly those registered through body parts provides insight into Hausa women s thoughts culture and socialization within their private spheres Thus writing by these women in the Hausa language creates an effective communication network that offers insight into domestic ecology as it affects women Emotions in Muslim Hausa Women s Fiction will be of interest to scholars and students of African literature postcolonial literature gender studies in African society womanism emotions and indigenous African fiction studies

Crossing the Line Gayle Wald,2000-07-24 Examines constructions of racial identity through the exploration of passing narratives including Black Like Me and forties jazz musician Mezz Mezzrow s memoir Really the Blues American Women Writers of the 19th Century Heidi M. Hanrahan,2025-03-17 The nineteenth century was a period of prolific literary production from women writers including figures such as Louisa May Alcott Harriet Jacobs and Zitkala a who played pivotal roles in American literary history Despite facing societal forces aimed at silencing them women writers found ways to assert their voices and contribute to the intellectual and political debates of the era Their works contribute to conversations on a wide range of topics including art gender social reform slavery abolition economic and social inequality national expansion Native American dispossession and the changing identity of the nation Both retrospective and forward looking their written works found diverse audiences of men women and children This book functions as a comprehensive guide to understanding the breadth of nineteenth century women s writing exploring not only the writers and their texts but also the literary periods genres and key cultural historical and social movements that shaped their works By examining these authors impact on American literary traditions and their role in cultural discourse it highlights the lasting relevance of their work in both historical and contemporary contexts Binding Cultures Gay Wilentz, 1992-05-22 Wilentz makes convincing arguments for the connections between African and Afro American women's culture. Nellie McKay Wilentz's jargon-free intelligent discussion will appeal to students in African American and women's literature courses as well as general readers interested in the emerging field. Choice Through these works Wilentz demonstrates the powerful transformation possible through understanding and embracing the past even if that past includes oppression and brutalization. Belles Lettres Binding Cultures investigates the cultural bonds between African and African American women writers such as Nigerian Flora Nwapa and Ghanaians Efua Sutherland and Ama Ata Aidoo writers who focus on the role of women in passing on cultural values to future generations and African American writers Alice Walker Toni Morrison and Paule Marshall who self-consciously evoke African culture to help create a more integrated African American community African Women Playwrights Kathy A. Perkins, 2009 For the first time a distinctive collection of plays by African women published in English
