cliff along the Pacific Coast Highway Investigators soon concluded that the crash was a murder suicide but there was more to the story Jennifer and Sarah Hart it turned out were a white married couple who had adopted six Black children from two different Texas families in 2006 and 2008 Behind the family's loving facade was an alleged pattern of abuse and neglect that had been ignored as the couple withdrew the children from school and moved west It soon became apparent that the State of Texas knew all too little about the two individuals to whom it had given custody of six children Immersive journalism of the highest order Roxanna Asgarian's We Were Once a Family is a revelation of precarious lives it is also a shattering exposé of the foster care and adoption systems that produced this tragedy As a journalist in Houston Asgarian sought out the children's birth families and put them at the center of the story We follow the lives of the Harts adopted children and their birth parents and the machinations of the state agency that sent the children far away Asgarian's reporting uncovers persistent racial biases and corruption as young people of color are separated from birth parents without proper cause The result is a riveting narrative and a deeply reported indictment of a system that continues to fail America's most vulnerable children while upending the lives of their families

Fictions of America Judie Newman, 2007-12-04. The Internet has had a huge impact on channels of communication and information, reaching across time and space to connect the world through globalisation. In this Internet-led world, story links to story, windows open on new stories, and no overall authority establishes priority. This sense of globalisation has raised many questions for contemporary American novelists: primarily the usefulness or redundancy of narrative and its potentially adaptive function. What are the right stories for such a broadband world? How do contemporary American novelists respond to issues such as the influence of the multinational corporation and its predecessors, human rights, Imperialism, the literary work as a marketable commodity, translation as betrayal, data overload, and the implosion of the virtual into the biosphere? Is globalisation inevitable, or is it a fiction which fiction turns into reality? Fictions of America explores these questions and looks at the ways in which India, China, and Africa can be said to have underwritten American culture: how literature has been marketed globally, and how novelists have answered back to power with resistant fictions. Judie Newman examines a wide range of fiction from the mid-nineteenth to the twenty-first century, including the transnational adoption narrative, short story, historical novel, slave narrative, international bestseller, and Western, to illustrate her argument. Looking closely at authors such as Bharati Mukherjee, John Updike, Emily Prager, Hannah Crafts, Zora Neale Hurston, David Bradley, Peter Heg, and Cormac McCarthy, Fictions of America provides a bold response to the crucial questions raised by globalisation.
