HIST 1302 COURSE LEARNING OBJECTIVES

Unit 1

CHAPTER 17 – The Contested West, 1865-1900

17.1. Explain the American concept of “manifest destiny”.

“Manifest Destiny” is the idea that it is Americans “god given” right to advance westward.

17.2. Describe and understand the role of the U.S. government in promoting settlement of the Far West.

The government instilled the Homestead Act of 1862, giving 160 acres of free land to any individual who settled on the land for five years.

17.3. Analyze the factors that led to the reservation system and the effect it had on Indians.

Indians had a hard time settling onto the land that they were forced onto. They struggled with impoverishment and depended on the government’s handouts. They were forced to assimilate and become the submissive to white men.

17.4. Describe how the near-extinction of the bison undermined the Indians’ way of life.

White hunters killed buffalo for hyde, while it was an essential piece to all ways of Indian life, including worship. Demand for leather belting used in machinery and development of guns made it easy for them to kill bison. They used the bison for everything. Food, clothing, spoons, shelter, etc. When the bison were taken away, their culture was taken away. They had to choose between starvation and reservations.

17.5. Analyze some of the significant confrontations between western Indian tribes and the U.S. government/army during the Plains Indians Wars.

The Plains Indian Wars was the last resistance of the Indians in attempt to stay on the reservations and not assimilate.

- Sand Creek (Nov. 1864): Colonel John M. Chivington and his Colorado militia descended on a village of Cheyenne, mostly women and children. Their leader, Black Kettle, raised a white flag and an American flag to signal surrender, but the charging calvary ignored his signal and butchered 270 Indians (accidentally mistaking them for savages).
- Geronimo (1886): a respected shaman of the Apache led raiding parties in the early 1880s. Eventually, Mile’s scouts cornered Geronimo in 1886 at Skeleton Canyon. He agreed to march North with the soldiers and negotiate a settlement. He was known as a hero.
