

OCCUPATIONAL THERAPY PRACTICE FRAMEWORK

Case Study

Maggie is a 24 year-old woman who sustained a spinal cord injury (SCI) during a motor vehicle accident while on her honeymoon. Her husband was thrown from the vehicle but received only minor injuries. Maggie was transported by EMS to the local emergency department. She was diagnosed with a C<sub>5-6</sub> vertebral subluxation and a C<sub>6</sub> crush injury, resulting in a complete C<sub>6</sub> spinal cord injury. She also sustained a left clavicular fracture. She received nasal O<sub>2</sub> for respiratory support. Once stabilized, she was transferred to the specialized trauma center near her home. A halo vest was applied which stabilized her cervical spine. No operative procedures were indicated at that time. After 22 days, her endurance improved so that she could tolerate sitting upright in a chair for up to 1 hour. She was transferred to the nearby rehabilitation facility's SCI unit. During her 12 week stay, she will only wear the halo brace for the first 3 to 4 weeks and her left shoulder flexion and abduction will also be limited (<90°) for the first several weeks until the clavicle fracture heals. Her only complications were two episodes of autonomic dysreflexia (apparently secondary to hard stool in the lower rectum) and a mild UTI.

Before her injury, Maggie was a college student in a liberal arts curriculum. She and her new husband had recently signed a 1-year lease on a second-floor apartment close to the university. She had been totally independent in all of her ADL and home-management activities. Her leisure pursuits included recreational team sports (particularly softball) and more sedentary activities like reading and gourmet cooking. She was also involved with her family, particularly two sisters and her parents, all of whom live close by.

You are assigned to be her primary OT and her expected stay in the rehabilitation setting is 12 weeks. Currently Maggie is dependent for transfers, contact guard for sitting balance in the wheelchair and dependent for all BADLS of feeding, dressing, bathing and toileting.
