Negotiating Place and Space through Digital Literacies Damiana G. Pyles, Ryan M. Rish, Julie Warner, 2019-05-01. Digital literacy practices have often been celebrated as means of transcending the constraints of the physical world through the production of new social spaces. At the same time, literacy researchers and educators are coming to understand all the ways that place matters. This volume, with contributors from across the globe, considers how space, place, identities, and the role of digital literacies create opportunities for individuals and communities to negotiate living, being, and learning together with and through digital media. The chapters in this volume consider how social, cultural, historical, and political literacies are brought to bear on a range of places that traverse the urban, rural, and suburban/exurban, with emphasis placed on the ways digital technology is used to create identities and do work within social, digital, and material worlds. This includes agentic work in digital literacies from a variety of identities or subjectivities that disrupt metronormativity, urban centrism, and other isms on the way to more authentic engagement with their communities and others. Featuring instances of research and practice across intersections of differences, including but not limited to race, class, gender, sexuality, ability, and language, the contributions in this volume demonstrate the ways that digital literacies hold educative potential.

Critical Mobile Pedagogy John Traxler, Helen Crompton, 2020-11-26. Critical Mobile Pedagogy is an exploration of mobile technologies for designing and delivering equitable and empowering education around the globe. Synthesizing a diverse range of projects and conceptual frameworks, this case-based collection addresses the ambitions, assumptions, and impacts of interventions in under-researched, often disadvantaged communities. The editors and authors provide a nuanced and culturally responsive approach to showcasing indigenous, nomadic, refugee, rural, and other marginalized communities, emerging pedagogies, such as curation, open resources, massive open online courses (MOOCs), and self-directed learning, contextual factors, including pedagogy, ethics, scaling, research methodology, and culture, and consequences of innocuous or harmful implementation and deployment, the nature of participation by global capital, multinationals, education systems, international agencies, national governments, and telecoms companies. Scholars, academics, policymakers, and program managers are increasingly using mobile technologies to support disadvantaged or disempowered communities in learning more effectively and appropriately. This book's diverse research precedents will help these and other stakeholders meet the challenges and opportunities of our complex, increasingly connected world and work with greater
