Reimagining the Judiciary Maria C. Escobar-Lemmon, Valerie J. Hoekstra, Alice J. Kang, Miki Caul Kittilson, 2022-01-13

This book examines the factors that facilitate the inclusion of women on high courts while recognizing that many courts have a long way to go before reaching gender parity. Why did women start appearing on high courts when they did? Where have women made the most significant strides? To address these questions, the authors built the first cross-national and longitudinal dataset on the appointment of women and men to high courts. In addition, they provide five in-depth country case studies to unpack the selection of justices to high courts in Canada, Colombia, Ireland, South Africa, and the United States. The cross-national lens and combination of quantitative analyses and detailed country studies examines multiple influences across region and time. Focusing on three sets of explanations: pipelines to high courts, domestic institutions, and international influences, analyses reveal that women are more likely to first appear on their country's high court when traditional ideas about who can and should be a judge erode. In some countries, international treaties, regional emulation, and women's international NGOs play a role in disseminating and linking global norms of gender equality in decision-making. Importantly, while informal institutions and reliance on men-dominated networks can limit access, women are making substantial strides in their countries' highest courts where the supply grows and often where selectors have incentives to select women. Further, sustained pressure from advocacy organizations at the local, national, and global levels contributes to some gains. Comparative Politics is a series for researchers, teachers, and students of political science that deals with contemporary government and politics. Global in scope, books in the series are characterized by a stress on comparative analysis and strong methodological rigour. The series is published in association with the European Consortium for Political Research. For more information, visit www.ecpr.net/eu. The series is edited by Susan Scarrow John and Rebecca Moores, Professor of Political Science at the University of Houston, and Jonathan Slapin, Professor of Political Institutions and European Politics, Department of Political Science, University of Zurich.

Intersectionality and Women's Access to Justice in Africa J. Jarpa Dawuni, 2022-10-17

Intersectionality and Women's Access to Justice, edited by J. Jarpa Dawuni, propounds layered intersectionality as a paradigm for examining how gendered factors affect women's access to justice, whether as judges or litigants. Through intersectional and decolonial frameworks, the contributors analyze the lived experiences of women and their access to justice by situating the courtroom as both a spatial and a temporal arena for seeking justice as litigants and for seeking access to the bench as judges. This book examines patterns of mutually reinforcing discriminatory practices that women share based on common gender identities and depending on which identities are at play at a given point in time in both traditional and statutory courts. The book provides recommendations for various justice sector providers.

The role of Jewish American Organizations in the Rescue, Rehabilitation and Reconstruction of Tunisia's Jewish Community between 1942 and 1967

Maissa Arfaoui, 2025-09-26. This book fills a major historical gap by investigating the role played by Jewish American organizations in the rescue rehabilitation and reconstruction of Tunisia's Jewish population during and after World War Two Using a variety of archival sources to explore the intricacies of this intervention and the dynamics of interactions between these organizations and local Jewish leaders as well as Tunisian government officials this book highlights that Jewish American organizations present in Tunisia during the wartime and postwar periods played a major role not only in the rescue and relief of the country's Jewish victims of war and German occupation but also in their educational vocational and medical rehabilitation which aimed to prepare them for immigration to Palestine

Identity and Diversity on the International Bench Freya Baetens, 2020-12-10 International courts and tribunals hold the power to decide on questions involving sovereignty over territory grave human rights violations international crimes or millions of euros worth of economic interests Judges and arbitrators are the faces and arguably the drivers of international adjudication Yet certain groups tend to be overrepresented on international benches while others remain underrepresented Although international courts and tribunals differ in their institutional make up and functions they all rely in essence on the judgement of a group of individuals each with their own background and experience Even if adjudicators identity is not the only and may not be the decisive influence on their decision making the relative lack of diversity has an effect on the judicial process and its outcomes which in turn entails broader implications for the legitimacy of international law This book analyses the implications of identity and diversity across numerous international adjudicatory bodies focusing on a wide range of factors Lack of diversity within the judiciary has been identified as a legitimacy concern in domestic settings and the last few years have seen increasing attention to this question at the international level as well making the book both timely and topical

Gender and the Judiciary in Africa Gretchen Bauer, Josephine Dawuni, 2015-10-30 Between 2000 and 2015 women ascended to the top of judiciaries across Africa most notably as chief justices of supreme courts in common law countries like Ghana Nigeria Sierra Leone Gambia Malawi Lesotho and Zambia but also as presidents of constitutional courts in civil law countries such as Benin Burundi Gabon Niger and Senegal Most of these appointments was a first in terms of the gender of the chief justice At the same time women are being appointed in record numbers as magistrates judges and justices across the continent While women s increasing numbers and roles in African executives and legislatures have been addressed in a burgeoning scholarly literature very little work has focused on women in judiciaries This book addresses the important issue of the increasing numbers and varied roles of women judges and justices as judiciaries evolve across the continent Scholars of law gender politics and African politics provide overviews of recent developments in gender and the judiciary in nine African countries that represent north east southern and west Africa as well as a range of colonial experiences postcolonial trajectories and legal systems including mixes of common civil customary or sharia law In the process each chapter seeks to address the following questions What has been the historical experience of the judicial system in a given country from before colonialism until the present What is the current court structure and where are the women judges justices magistrates and other women located What are the selection or appointment processes for joining the bench and in what ways may these help or hinder women to gain access to the courts as judges and justices Once they become judges do women on the bench promote the rights of women through their judicial powers What are the challenges and obstacles facing women judges and justices in Africa Timely and relevant in this era in which governmental accountability and transparency are essential to the consolidation of democracy in Africa and when women are accessing significant leadership positions across the continent this book considers the substantive and symbolic representation of women s interests by women judges and the wider implications of their presence for changing institutional norms and advancing the rule of law and human rights

Gender, Judging and the Courts in Africa J. Jarpa Dawuni,2021-11-29

Women judges are playing increasingly prominent roles in many African judiciaries yet there remains very little comparative research on the subject Drawing on extensive cross national data and theoretical and empirical analysis this book provides a timely and broad ranging assessment of gender and judging in African judiciaries Employing different theoretical approaches the book investigates how women have fared within domestic African judiciaries as both actors and litigants It explores how women negotiate multiple hierarchies to access the judiciary and how gender related issues are handled in courts The chapters in the book provide policy theoretical and practical prescriptions to the challenges identified and offer recommendations for the future directions of gender and judging in the post COVID 19 era including the role of technology artificial intelligence social media and institutional transformations that can help promote women s rights Bringing together specific cases from Kenya Uganda Ghana Nigeria Zambia Tanzania and South Africa and regional bodies such as ECOWAS and the African Commission on Human and Peoples Rights and covering a broad range of thematic reflections this book will be of interest to scholars students and practitioners of African law judicial politics judicial training and gender studies It will also be useful to bilateral and multilateral donor institutions financing gender sensitive judicial reform programs particularly in Africa The Open Access version of this book available at www.taylorfrancis.com/books/oa/edit/10.4324/9780429327865 gender judging courts africa jarpa dawuni has been made available under a Creative Commons Attribution Non Commercial No Derivatives 4.0 license
