Higher Education, Public Good and Markets Jandhyala B. G. Tilak, 2017-10-16

This book critically examines some of the major trends in the development of higher education. It demonstrates how in the context of liberalisation, globalisation and marketisation the crisis in higher education has assumed different dimensions in all advanced and emerging societies. The author shows how the state tends to slowly withdraw from the responsibility of higher education including in the arena of policy making or simply adopts a policy of laissez faire of non involvement which helps in the rapid unbridled growth of private sector in higher education. The notion of higher education as a public good is under serious contestation in current times. The book argues for the need to resurrect the compelling nature of higher education along with its several implications for public policy and planning while providing a broad portrayal of global developments, comparative perspectives and key lessons. The volume will be of interest to scholars and researchers of education, political science, public policy and administration, governance, development studies, economics and those working in the higher education sectors, think tanks, policymakers as well as NGOs.

In Good Company Bede Benjamin Bidlack, 2015-02-04

In Good Company answers a question that has confounded Christian theologians: What is the nature of the body that will enjoy resurrection at the end of time? In this exciting work of comparative theology, Bede Benjamin Bidlack derives a theory of the body from the French Jesuit Pierre Teilhard de Chardin by putting him in dialogue with the Song Dynasty Daoist Xiao Yingsou. In addition to its contribution to comparative theology, In Good Company offers the first translation of the preface of Xiao's commentary on the Duren jing in a Western language as well as a careful explication of the provocative mountain diagram therein. Bidlack presents an original contribution for both scholars of Christian theology and Chinese religion. An excellent example of comparative theology, Bede Bidlack's In Good Company demonstrates how certain lacunae in one tradition may be addressed by drawing on resources from another religion. Having identified a neglect of the body in the work of Pierre Teilhard de Chardin and in much of the Christian tradition of divinization, Bidlack discusses the work of Daoist scholar Xiao Yingsou as a possible source of inspiration and theological imagination. Catherine Cornille, Newton College Alumnae Chair Professor of Comparative Theology, Boston College. In Good Company takes comparative theology to a new level: it not only places Daoism front and center but also opens Christian spirituality to a wider dimension. Concerned with the two core themes of the body and personal divinization or resurrection, the book centers on the work of two influential thinkers in their traditions: Teilhard de Chardin and Xiao Yingsou. Although 800 years apart, their visions of the body as the means to ultimate fulfillment in close relation to divinity and the cosmos as a whole powerfully enhance each other as do their understanding of the intricate process of personal divinization. The book is challenging in its outlook, unsettling in its destabilization of terms, and brilliant in its interweaving of the two traditions. A must for anyone concerned with the new global environment of religious pluralism and the ongoing process of interreligious dialogue. Livia Kohn, Professor Emerita of Religion, East Asian Studies, Boston University.

explores and presents research that centers on the historical political sociological and economic factors that engender global inequities Provided by publisher Higher Education and the Common Good Simon Marginson,2016-12-19 In the last half century higher education has moved from the fringe to the centre of society and accumulated a long list of functions In the English speaking world Europe and much of East Asia more than two thirds of all school students enter tertiary education Bulging at the seams universities are meant to be fountains of new knowledge engines of prosperity and innovation drivers of regional growth skilled migration and global competitiveness and makers of equality of opportunity Yet universities cannot drive prosperity on their own and they can do little to stop rising income inequality which is shaped by taxation policy and income determination in the workplace Worse the growing emphasis on the private benefits of higher education without regard for its public benefits has positioned the higher education sector as elite forming as a maker of social inequality rather than a corrective to it In the English speaking countries in which government sees itself as servant of high capitalism official policy models higher education as a market and has narrowed its purpose to the enhancement of individual earnings and employability partly to justify the ever rising tuition fees Higher education systems have become intensely competitive and increasingly stratified with value concentrated at the top In this quasi aristocratic economics of education mass institutions are losing social value and the collective public benefits of universities are unmonitored underfunded and ignored In short governments expect both too much and too little of higher education and its contribution to the common good is being eroded Yet this sector can play a key role in rebuilding social solidarity and mobility in fractured societies
