Nice Gaps Are You Making Difference:

The Global Achievement Gap Tony Wagner, 2014-03-11 Despite the best efforts of educators our nation's schools are dangerously obsolete. Instead of teaching students to be critical thinkers and problem solvers we are asking them to memorize facts for multiple choice tests. This problem isn't limited to low income school districts even our top schools aren't teaching or testing the skills that matter most in the global knowledge economy. Our teens leave school equipped to work only in the kinds of jobs that are fast disappearing from the American economy. Meanwhile young adults in India and China are competing with our students for the most sought after careers around the world. Education expert Tony Wagner has conducted scores of interviews with business leaders and observed hundreds of classes in some of the nation's most highly regarded public schools. He discovered a profound disconnect between what potential employers are looking for in young people today: critical thinking skills, creativity and effective communication and what our schools are providing: passive learning environments and uninspired lesson plans that focus on test preparation and reward memorization. He explains how every American can work to overhaul our education system and he shows us examples of dramatically different schools that teach all students new skills. In addition through interviews with college graduates and people who work with them Wagner discovers how teachers, parents and employers can motivate the generation to excellence. An education manifesto for the twenty first century. The Global Achievement Gap is provocative and inspiring. It is essential reading for parents, educators, business leaders, policy makers and anyone interested in seeing our young people succeed as employees and citizens. House of Commons - Committee of Public Accounts: The BBC's Move to Salford - HC 293 Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Committee of Public Accounts,2013-10-16 The BBC did a good job in completing the move to Salford on time within budget and without disruption services However the scale of some of the allowances paid to staff to relocate to Salford is difficult to justify There were 11 cases where the cost of relocating staff exceeded 100 000 per person with one costing 150 000 The BBC also failed to make a proper record of the exceptions it made to its allowance policy The longer term success of the move to Salford depends on the BBC achieving the wider benefits it promised These include reducing the gap between Northern and Southern audiences in the BBC s market share and stimulating economic and other regional benefits including creating up to 15 000 jobs The BBC should set clearly defined expectations for its relationships with its commercial partners and make clear that they must pay their fair share of tax The BBC s decision to enter into a 10 year contract with the Peel Group for studio space at Salford seems to take little account the fast pace of change in the broadcasting industry The BBC could end up having to pay for studio services it no longer needs and become overly dependent on them There is also dismay at the abandonment of the BBC s Digital Media Initiative at a cost to the licence fee payer of 100 million There have been conflicting reports from the BBC and the BBC Trust on what the project did or did not deliver
