Reading Sideways Dana Seitler, 2019-07-02 Reading Sideways explores the pivotal role that various art forms played in American literary fiction in direct relation to the politics of gender and sexuality in works of modern American literature It tracks the crosswise circulation of aesthetic ideas in fiction and argues that at stake in the aesthetic turn of these works was not only the theorization of aesthetic experience but also an engagement with political arguments and debates about available modes of sociability and sexual expression To track these engagements its author Dana Seitler performs a method she calls lateral reading a mode of interpretation that moves horizontally through various historical entanglements and across the fields of the arts to make sense of and see in a new light their connections challenges and productive frictions Each chapter takes a different art form as its object sculpture portraiture homecraft and opera These art forms appear in some of the major works of literature of the period central to negotiations of gender race and sexuality including those by Henry James Davis Willa Cather Du Bois Sarah Orne Jewett and Mary Wilkins Freeman But the literary texts that each chapter of this book takes as its motivation not only include a specific art form or object as central to its politics they also build an alternative aesthetic vocabulary through which they seek to alter challenge or participate in the making of social and sexual life By cultivating a counter aesthetics of the unfinished the uncertain the small the low and the allusive these fictions recognize other ways of knowing and being than those oriented toward reductively gendered accounts of beauty classed imperatives established by the norms of taste or apolitical treatises of sexual disinterestedness And within them and through reading sideways we can witness the coming into legibility of a set of diffuse practices that provide a pivot point for engaging the political methods of minoritized subjects at the turn of the twentieth century

Opening the Mind or Drawing Boundaries? Thorsteinn Helgason, Simone Lässig, 2009-12-09 History texts studied by students in schools are an important field for drawing boundaries between nations beliefs ethnic groups and countries sometimes causing disputes and protests Even in the democratic and peaceful Nordic countries history texts carry a message of authorized content knowledge and situated values At the same time they are meant to foster the critical mind a skillfull eye and a tolerant spirit In this volume scholars from Denmark Finland Iceland Norway and Sweden explore the question of Us and the Others in Nordic textbooks and educational media and focus on teachers opinions and use of history texts partly based on a survey among Nordic history teachers in elementary and secondary schools The questions dealt with are of national identity and multiculturalism sameness and difference content and pedagogy skills and values goals of history education and teachers situations The scholars and teachers compare the educational and societal aims with the actual teaching materials at hand The potentialities and limitations of textbooks and other educational media are investigated and discussed Reading for Understanding Mabel Abbott Bessey, Isabelle Pine Coffin, 1936 Canadian Bookman ,1926 Seeing Voices Oliver Sacks, Oliver W.
