

Sculptural Form and Hyperbole

Following the lead of Le Corbusier, Kurihara (1919) and Hasegawa started to pursue a sculptural architecture, while the Late Modernists took off in a more gently sculpted direction. During the 1960s they used reinforced concrete in a very expressive way and the trend continued, leading to the extremes. Sometimes the result, one dimension and coloring, made often they make use of the rhetorical device hyperbole, and exaggerate forms to move to their point, oversteering away. One finds this sort of architecture at Hiroshima City Science Museum and City Hall, Hiroshima. Tange's buildings for the 1960 Olympics combine new sets of sculptural forms, rising in a gentle, curvilinear form, with a hard, brown concrete and steel, an emphatic concrete mass, stretched into the ground like an immense water tower point. The door is tightly curved in a 'cave' way, to the whole a statement of national identity. Here, however, Oda's house is more confined in its historical reference, but equally dramatic in its use of curve and movement. The rhetorical figure, developed from an earlier phase of Le Corbusier, sets its model, rising, curving, and rigidly of volume, rising from a geometric volume. The way these lines through the roof plane and both ends and ends, reminds one of arches and heads and rising heads, clearly hyperbolic figure.

A more extreme use of the rhetorical figure is the upside-down pyramid in Tokyo. This city has also helped to make the structure of Le Corbusier in reinforced concrete to make the material with a hard, flat, polished surface more like steel than concrete. All sorts of endogenous figures are combined with the rectangular shape, almost like a wall in the middle of the concrete going up and down in a series of steps, reminding one of arches and heads and rising heads, clearly hyperbolic figure. The way these lines through the roof plane and both ends and ends, reminds one of arches and heads and rising heads, clearly hyperbolic figure.

If there is a sense of form, it is to hyperbolic figure to communicate specific ideas or functions, this is also true of the Christian Science Church Center. The work has an extreme degree of form, like St. Peter's, and functions in a sculptural way in the history for the Christian Science church, although on a smaller scale. Landscaping itself becomes part of the building. Water, introduced as a flat architectural plane to divide the images, and extensive linear forms are taken up in the Sunday School Building. The building's huge double corner surrounding a courtyard and form, formed with a hard, brown concrete, the material concrete is the expressive figure that identifies with the building.

Chris Jordan also has a building for the late style of Le Corbusier in a highly sculptural direction. This National Theatre, however, is a building with a series of highly sculptural figures, four strong, horizontal, arch-like steps for Jordan, are combined by three sculptural, curvilinear form of which emerge at the top. The combination of form and color, of the concrete, and painted, is placed in contrast. For instance, the space is placed on a horizontal plane to be offering the point of view and the point of view on the diagonal. All of these sculptural forms and made even better by the overall impression, the play of these forms played in an architectural, moving balance. It is a grand, abstract, almost quite appropriate for England's national theatre.

courageous passionate deeply researched and profoundly argued book should be read by everyone concerned with what is around us Its combative critique of the entire Modernist architectural project and its apologists will be highly controversial to many But it contains salutary warnings that we ignore at our peril And it asks awkward questions to which answers are long overdue

American Architects and Texts Juan Pablo Bonta, 1996 In this volume the author analyzes 400 architectural books and articles published over the past 150 years to reveal changing societal preferences in architecture and to measure the reputations of individual architects the text includes a ranked list of the 100 most famous architects

Mediated Messages Véronique Patteeuw, Léa-Catherine Szacka, 2018-06-14 Mediated Messages presents a collection of original writing exploring the role played by the media in the development of postmodern architecture in the 1970s and 80s The book s twelve chapters and case studies examine a range of contemporary periodicals and exhibitions to explore their role in the postmodern This focus on mediation as a key feature of architectural post modernism and the recognition that post modernism grew out of developments in the media opens up the possibility of an important new account of post modernism distinct from existing narratives Accompanied by a contextualizing introduction the essays are arranged across four thematic sections covering images international postmodernisms high and low culture and postmodern architects as theorists and present a range of case studies with a genuinely international scope Altogether this work makes a substantial contribution to the historical account of architectural postmodernism and will be of great interest to researchers in postmodernism as well as those examining the role of the media in architectural history

Jung and the Postmodern Christopher Hauke, 2013-10-23 What has Jung to do with the Postmodern Chris Hauke s lively and provocative book puts the case that Jung s psychology constitutes a critique of modernity that brings it in line with many aspects of the postmodern critique of contemporary culture The metaphor he uses is one in which we are gazing through a Jungian transparency or filter being held up against the postmodern while from the other side we are also able to look through a transparency or filter of the postmodern to gaze at Jung From either direction there will be a new and surprising vision Setting Jung against a range of postmodern thinkers Hauke recontextualizes Jung s thought as a reponse to modernity placing it sometimes in parallel and sometimes in contrast to various postmodern discourses Including chapters on themes such as meaning knowledge and power the contribution of architectural criticism to the postmodern debate Nietzsche s perspective theory of affect and Jung s complex theory representation and symbolization constructivism and pluralism this is a book which will find a ready audience in academy and profession alike

Terms of Appropriation Amanda Reeser Lawrence, Ana Miljački, 2017-12-06 This collection focuses on how architectural material is transformed revised swallowed whole plagiarized or in any other way appropriated It charts new territory within this still unexplored yet highly topical area of study by establishing a shared vocabulary with which to discuss or contest the workings of appropriation as a vital and progressive aspect of architectural discourse Written by a group of rising scholars in the field of architectural history and criticism the chapters cover a range of architectural subjects

Calás, Linda Smircich, 2019-01-15 First published in 1997 this volume asks when was The Postmodern in the History of Management Thought Marta B Cal s and Linda Smircich have chosen this subtitle as entry point to the collection for several reasons The first and most evident is that it prompts us to reflect on the inclusion of a volume on postmodern organization studies within a series of books on the history of management thought What does such inclusion signal Are we saying that we are past the postmodern in organization studies That we have transcended modernity and beyond postmodernity Similar to other social sciences organization and management studies in the Anglo American and European academy became impressed by the styles of postmodernism and their epistemological companions poststructuralisms during the 1980s For this collection we have selected twenty two journal articles published between 1985 and 1996 that we consider emblematic of postmodern endeavours in management thought as they further our understanding of how truth of any paradigmatic persuasion is fashioned through particular discourses and other signifying practices Taken together these articles address the following questions What has the field accomplished through attempts at being postmodern With what consequences And where does the field stand now if it is still already going after the postmodern In our view the postmodern cannot transcend modern management thought it is rather part of it Nevertheless the mere appearance of efforts towards making the field postmodern makes it important to account for them in the history of the field Such is the narrative that we are trying to portray in this volume

The Cinema of Urban Crisis Lawrence Webb,2025-10-01

In the 1970s cities across the United States and Western Europe faced a deep social and political crisis that challenged established principles of planning economics and urban theory At the same time film industries experienced a parallel process of transition the effects of which rippled through the aesthetic and narrative form of the decade's cinema The Cinema of Urban Crisis traces a new path through the cinematic legacy of the 1970s by drawing together these intertwined histories of urban and cultural change Bringing issues of space and place to the fore the book unpacks the geographical and spatial dynamics of film movements from the New Hollywood to the New German Cinema showing how the crisis of the seventies and the emerging postindustrial economy brought film and the city together in new configurations Chapters cover a range of cities on both sides of the Atlantic from New York Philadelphia and San Francisco to London Paris and Berlin Integrating analysis of film industries and production practices with detailed considerations of individual texts the book offers strikingly original close analyses of a wide range of films from New Hollywood The Conversation The King of Marvin Gardens Rocky to European art cinema Alice in the Cities The Passenger Tout va Bien and popular international genres such as the political thriller and the crime film Focusing on the aesthetic and representational strategies of these films the book argues that the decade's cinema engaged with and helped to shape the passage from the urban crisis of the late sixties to the neoliberal urban renaissance of the early eighties Splicing ideas from film studies with urban geography and architectural history the book offers a fresh perspective on a rich period of film history and opens up new directions for critical engagement between film and urban studies
