Ladd, 2018-09-15 The Talk Therapy Revolution Neuroscience Phenomenology and Mental Health uses phenomenology and neuroscience to describe experiential counseling themes such as intuition attunement emotional regulation insight empathy momentum and others Peter Ladd explores these experiential counseling practices in direct comparison with a medical model of talk therapy and examines the pros and cons of both models Ladd presents an orderly and efficient integration of these two models that accounts for the reciprocal relationship between human experience and neuroscience in which interpersonal relationships have a direct impact on the brain and the brain has a direct impact on human experience

Meaning Systems and Mental Health Culture, James T. Hansen, 2016-02-01 The creation of meaning is a central feature of human life The full spectrum of experience from joyful devoted living to unbearable psychological suffering is orchestrated by the meanings that people endorse and create Meaning Systems and Mental Health Culture Critical

Perspectives on Contemporary Counseling and Psychotherapy examines the intersection of meaning systems mental health culture and counseling and psychotherapy By viewing mental health care through the lenses of culture and history James T Hansen argues that a defining element of mental health culture throughout various eras is the relative value placed on meaning systems Contemporary mental health care with its idealization of symptom based diagnostics biological reductionism and the medical model severely devalues meaning systems This devaluation has led modern counselors and psychotherapists to largely abandon the factors that should be central to their work Meaning Systems and Mental Health Culture weaves together empirical historical cultural and philosophical perspectives to raise awareness of the need for counseling and psychotherapy to revalue meaning systems even while operating within a culture that disregards them
