New Directions in Civic Engagement Kathleen Ferraiolo, 2004 Assessing Civic Engagement Dawn Geronimo Terkla, Lisa S. O'Leary, 2015-01-12 How does one assess community service civic engagement and the impact of service learning on a college campus This volume reviews contemporary research measurement instruments and practices in the assessment of civic engagement in higher education including meta analyses of students faculty institutions and higher education systems at large targeted case studies of campus specific practices at individual institutions efficient and effective ways to gauge the influence of civic engagement on higher education policy practices and outcomes and quantitative and qualitative approaches to measuring the effort importance of and impact of students and institutions involvement in community service community engagement civic engagement and service learning on a college campus The research ranges between decisions made either as part of institutional agendas curricular enhancements or student life initiatives and student and professor involvement in civic engagement activities and supportive attitudes This is the 162nd volume of this Jossey Bass quarterly report series Timely and comprehensive New Directions for Institutional Research provides planners and administrators in all types of academic institutions with guidelines in such areas as resource coordination information analysis program evaluation and institutional management Civic Engagement and Community Service at Research Universities Krista M. Soria, Tania D. Mitchell, 2016-06-01 This book outlines how undergraduate students engage with civic and community projects and how this can be encouraged by their universities It also explores how universities can build on this involvement and develop undergraduates civic and democratic capacities including programmatic strategies and conceptual frameworks for understanding the students activities As higher education across the globe experiences increasing student numbers it is important to understand how students engage with civic and community service Community Engagement in Higher Education W. James Jacob, Stewart E. Sutin, John C. Weidman, John L. Yeager, 2015-06-17 There seems to be renewed interest in having universities and other higher education institutions engage with their communities at the local national and international levels But what is community engagement Even if this interest is genuine and widespread there are many different concepts of community service outreach and engagement The wide range of activity encompassed by community engagement suggests that a precise definition of the community mission is difficult and organizing and coordinating such activities is a complex task This edited volume includes 18 chapters that explore conceptual understandings of community engagement and higher education reforms and initiatives intended to foster it Contributors provide empirical research findings including several case study examples that respond to the following higher education community engagement issues What is the community and what does it need and expect from higher education institutions Is community engagement a mission of all types of higher education institutions or should it be the mission of specific institutions such as regional or metropolitan universities technical universities community colleges or indigenous institutions while other institutions such as major research universities should concentrate on national and global research agendas and on educating internationally competent researchers and professionals How can a university be global and at the same time locally relevant Is it or should it be left to the institutions to determine the scope and mode of their community engagement or is a state mandate preferable and feasible If community engagement or community service are mandatory what are the consequences of not complying with the mandate How effective are policy mandates and university engagement for regional and local economic development What are the principal features and relationships of regionally engaged universities Is community engagement to be left to faculty members and students who are particularly socially engaged and locally embedded or is it or should it be made mandatory for both faculty and students How can community engagement be better integrated with the other two traditional missions of the university research and teaching Cover image The Towering Four fold Mission of Higher Education by Natalie Jacob Service Learning in Higher Education Phylis Lan Lin, 2009-02-25

Service Learning has proved to be a powerful and practical methodology and tool with far reaching implications Benefits have included increased civic engagement enhanced sense of purpose greater feeling of fulfillment nurtured creativity and promotion of problem solving skills and social responsibility as traditional classrooms have moved to the communities and students have become service providers and learners The papers in this book span a good part of the globe and cover a wide application spectrum from health care business administration nursing occupational therapy and speech and language therapy to gerontology and food service Extended models and prototypes explored include community engaged learning long distance learning and the bridge between older and younger students In addition to current perspectives and numerous revealing case studies with local communities and international service learning projects thirty chapters and a reflection paper are devoted to documenting lessons learning assessing service learning programs identifying new challenges and tapping into the emerging paradigms in service learning Innovation and the Social Economy Marie J.

Bouchard, 2013-03-07 Social economy organizations such as cooperatives non profits mutual benefit groups foundations and non governmental organizations are uniquely positioned to respond not only to emerging social and economic needs but also to new collective aspirations In Quebec for instance a pioneering social economy system has been developed that is recognized worldwide for its ability to foster innovative solutions to economic disparity and sustainability issues In the wake of a global crisis that has emphasized the growing gap between economic and social concerns what can other regions gain from this model Through robust theoretical and in depth empirical studies this book offers the first opportunity to English language readers to learn about the Quebec experience of a social economy system It takes stock of recent developments in the province relating to policy planning governance financing local development and legal frameworks Innovation and the Social Economy also emphasizes this system's potential for exploring alternative practices of production consumption and distribution that can foster social transformation Becoming an Engaged Campus Carole A. Beere, James C. Votruba, Gail

W. Wells, 2011-04-05 Becoming an Engaged Campus offers campus leaders a systematic and detailed approach to creating an environment where public engagement can grow and flourish. The book explains not only what to do to expand community engagement and how to do it but it also explores how to document, evaluate, and communicate university engagement efforts. Praise for Becoming an Engaged Campus: This provocative yet exceedingly practical book looks at all of the angles and lays bare the opportunities and barriers for campus community engagement while providing detailed pathways toward change. This comprehensive treatise marks a significant shift in the literature from the what and why of public engagement to the how. It is simply superb. KEVIN KECSKES, associate vice provost for engagement, Portland State University. Becoming an Engaged Campus is an essential guidebook for university leaders. It details the specific ways that campuses must align all aspects of the institution if they are to be successful in the increasingly important work of community outreach and engagement. GEORGE L. MEHAFFY, vice president for academic leadership and change, American Association of State Colleges and Universities. Most colleges and universities make the rhetorical claim of community engagement; this book is an excellent primer on how to transform the rhetoric into reality. The authors do not speak in abstract terms. They describe the specific structures, policies, and programs that have made Northern Kentucky University a national model of how a large urban university can transform its impact on the region it is supposed to serve. WILLIAM E. KIRWAN, chancellor, University System of Maryland.

Leading the Inclusive City Robin Hambleton, 2014-11-24 Cities are often seen as helpless victims in a global flow of events, and many view growing inequality in cities as inevitable. This engaging book rejects this gloomy prognosis and argues that imaginative place-based leadership can enable citizens to shape the urban future in accordance with progressive values: advancing social justice, promoting care for the environment, and bolstering community empowerment. This international and comparative book, written by an experienced author, shows how inspirational civic leaders are making a major difference in cities across the world. The analysis provides practical lessons for local leaders and a significant contribution to thinking on public service innovation for anyone who wants to change urban society for the better.

The Crisis of Race in Higher Education William F. Tate IV, Nancy Staudt, Ashley Macrander, 2016-12-22 The compendium of writings in this edited volume sheds light on the event Race Ethnicity A Day of Discovery and Dialogue at Washington University in St. Louis and the work current students, faculty, and staff are doing to improve inclusivity on campus and in St. Louis.

Spirituality in Higher Education Sherry L. Hoppe, Bruce W. Speck, 2005 This issue looks at spirituality in higher education through a number of lenses, examining what many view as a trend towards incorporating spirituality back into the lives of students, faculty, and administrators. Questions about meaning and purpose are as old as humans, and in the earliest days of higher education the search for truth was the ultimate journey of the student. Over the decades, though, the academy has often shunned the spiritual aspect of a student's education. Whether that is to avoid controversy or to protect from acknowledging that all is not known there is a predisposition to avoid talking about spirituality in the academy. Regardless the result is the creation of what T. S. Eliot called hallow men who live in this world but do not know why they are here and thus do not know how to live their lives. This book is responding to a reawakening of desire to avoid such creatures. The issue's purpose at least in a cursory way is to look at spirituality in academe through a number of lenses. Composed of chapters from both faculty and administrators, this volume offers insight into the critical need for spirituality in educating the whole student while recognizing that how spirituality is viewed and taught and experienced is intensely personal. The goal is not to prescribe how spirituality should be integrated but to offer multiple options and perspectives. Not only will readers learn about the complex and vital role of spirituality, they will also be reminded that the quest for truth and meaning, not the destination, is what is vitally important in shaping discussions about spirituality. This is the 104th issue of the Josse Bass quarterly support series New Directions for Teaching and Learning.

The Civic Renewal Movement Carmen Sirianni, Lewis A. Friedland, 2005
This book explores innovation in various forms of civic engagement while documenting the renewal of the civic movement and analyzing the power of citizens in their communities. From civic environmentalism to public journalism, Sirianni and Friedland offer unique insights into the future methods and directions of American self-rule while providing a resource-rich guide for future research in the field. Carmen Sirianni is professor of sociology and public policy at Brandeis University. Lewis A. Friedland is professor of journalism and mass communication and sociology at the University of Wisconsin-Madison.

About the Kettering Foundation
The Kettering Foundation is a nonpartisan nonprofit operating foundation rooted in the American tradition of cooperative research. L'économie sociale, vecteur d'innovation Marie J. Bouchard, 2011-11-14T00:00:00-05:00
L'économie sociale n'est pas un phénomène nouveau. Mais elle connaît un regain d'intérêt depuis les dernières décennies, notamment dans le contexte de la crise économique et des remises en cause profondes qu'elle occasionne. Les risques occasionnés par la disjonction de l'économie et du social font l'objet de douloureuses manifestations, et la crise ressemble moins un soubresaut conjoncturel qu'une probable grande rupture du modèle de développement. Dans ce contexte, l'intérêt pour l'économie sociale s'accroît. On y voit, entre autres, un laboratoire d'innovations sociales qui cherche à dessiner les plans d'une économie qui ne soit pas dissociée du social, non plus que du politique. Ce livre rend compte de recherches récentes qui concernent des enjeux contemporains pour l'économie sociale et dont l'expérience qu'elle constitue avertit sur un terrain riche d'enseignements. Les différents chapitres du livre rendent compte de l'histoire récente de l'économie sociale au Québec de ses traits spécifiques sur le plan juridique et du rapport salarial de ses pratiques en matière de gouvernance et de financement de ses impacts sur le d veloppement local et le d veloppement durable de son engagement dans la recherche partenariale On y constate que les initiatives de l conomie sociale apparues d abord l chelle locale se sont multipli es et diffus es entra nant des effets structurants sur les conditions de vie le travail et les territoires ainsi que sur la planification et la mise en uvre des politiques publiques Les innovations sociales tout en tant des r ponses des besoins sont donc aussi des avenues pour le changement social

Deliberation & the Work of Higher Education John R. Dedrick, Laura Grattan, Harris Dienstfrey, 2008 This book edited by Kettering Foundation Vice President and Program Director John Dedrick along with Laura Grattan and Harris Dienstfrey demonstrates how deliberation can help higher education renew its mission of preparing citizens to sustain democracy and stimulate civic involvement on college campuses around the country It also describes how deliberative dialogue in both the classroom and on campus can promote learning and problem solving amidst a culture of argument debate and polarization that is prevalent on campus and in society First and foremost however it is a book about the possibilities of deliberation and the ways in which teachers and administrators can adapt it to their instructional and organizational goals About the Kettering Foundation The Kettering Foundation is a nonpartisan nonprofit operating foundation rooted in the American tradition of cooperative research Kettering s primary research question is What does it take to make democracy work as it should Kettering s research is distinctive because it is conducted from the perspective of citizens and focuses on what people can do collectively to address problems affecting their lives their communities and their nation For more information about Kettering research and publications see the Kettering Foundation s website at www.kettering.org
