Forgery and Memory at the End of the First Millennium Levi Roach, 2022-08-09 An in depth exploration of documentary forgery at the turn of the first millennium Forgery and Memory at the End of the First Millennium takes a fresh look at documentary forgery and historical memory in the Middle Ages In the tenth and eleventh centuries religious houses across Europe began falsifying texts to improve local documentary records on an unprecedented scale As Levi Roach illustrates the resulting wave of forgery signaled major shifts in society and political culture shifts which would lay the foundations for the European ancien régime Spanning documentary traditions across France England Germany and northern Italy Roach examines five sets of falsified texts to demonstrate how forged records produced in this period gave voice to new collective identities within and beyond the Church Above all he indicates how this fad for falsification points to new attitudes toward past and present a developing fascination with the signs of antiquity These conclusions revise traditional master narratives about the development of antiquarianism in the modern era showing that medieval forgers were every bit as sophisticated as their Renaissance successors Medieval forgers were simply interested in different subjects the history of the Church and their local realms rather than the literary world of classical antiquity A comparative history of falsified records at a crucial turning point in the Middle Ages Forgery and Memory at the End of the First Millennium offers valuable insights into how institutions and individuals rewrote and reimagined the past

Reconstructing a Maritime Past Matthew Harpster, 2022-12-30 Reconstructing a Maritime Past argues that rather than applying geo ethnic labels to shipwrecks to describe Greek or Roman seafaring a more intriguing alternative emphasizes a maritime culture's valorization of the Mediterranean Sea Doing so creates new questions and research agendas to understand the past human relationship with the sea This study makes this argument in three sections Chapters 1 and 2 contrasting intellectual histories of maritime archaeological interpretive approaches common in Northern Europe and the Mediterranean propose that the former perspective which embodies contemporary and fluid perceptions of culture is a better theoretical framework for future research Chapters 3-5 re-interpret the corpus of submerged sites in the Mediterranean Sea with this approach arguing that this dataset does not represent Phoenician Muslim or Byzantine seafaring but the practices of a maritime culture Key to this section is the author's method that utilizes superimposed polygons to model patterns of maritime activity generating centennial results at different scales Having built the models of a maritime culture's valorization of the Mediterranean Sea

Chapter 6 contains the first comparisons of these models to other datasets questioning the relevance of textual media to understand maritime activity while finding closer analogues with other archaeological corpora By deconstructing interpretive methods in maritime archaeology offering a new synthesizing interpretive approach that is scalable and decoupled from past perceptions and critically examining the applicability of various media to illuminate the past maritime experience this book will appeal to scholars at various stages of their careers Urban Network Evolutions Rubina Raja, Søren M.

Sindbaek, 2018-12-31 For millennia urban networks have shaped the development of human societies Today new archaeological approaches are unveiling the evolution of these networks in unprecedented detail Urban Networks Evolutions reviews the new approaches to urban evolution as archaeology endeavours to characterise both the scale and pace of historical events and processes Issuing from the work of the Danish National Research Foundation's Centre of Excellence the Centre for Urban Network Evolutions UrbNet the book compares the archaeology of urbanism from medieval Northern Europe to the Ancient Mediterranean and the Indian Ocean World The 40 contributors demonstrate how new techniques for refining archaeological dates contexts and the provenance ascribed to material culture afford a new high definition approach to the study of global and interregional dynamics This opens up for far reaching questions as to how and to what extent urban networks catalysed societal and environmental expansions and crises in the past Envoys and Political

Communication in the Late Antique West, 411-533 Andrew Gillett, 2003-08-28 Warfare and dislocation are obvious features of the break up of the late Roman West but this crucial period of change was characterized also by communication and diplomacy The great events of the late antique West were determined by the quieter labours of countless envoys who travelled between emperors kings generals high officials bishops provincial councils and cities This book examines the role of envoys in the period from the establishment of the first barbarian kingdoms in the West to the eve of Justinian's wars of reconquest It shows how ongoing practices of Roman imperial administration shaped new patterns of political interaction in the novel context of the earliest medieval states Close analysis of sources with special interest in embassies offers insight into a variety of genres chronicles panegyrics hagiographies letters and epitaph This study makes a significant contribution to the developing field of ancient and medieval communications
