Limits to Regional Integration Søren Døsenrode, 2016-03-09 Regionalization in general and regional integration in particular have taken place at a growing pace since the end of the Cold War when states were set free from various security overlays Regional integration is logical as it is supposed to advance wealth and peace Still the picture is far from clear and the process of regional integration is not automatic disintegration takes place as we saw in the cases of the Soviet Union Yugoslavia and Czechoslovakia to mention a few This is the case not only in states recently brought together but also in traditional states like Britain The Netherlands and Spain where strong groups strive for independence In some places regionalization is flourishing but regional integration is not Some regional integration projects like the North American Free Trade Agreement and Mercosur seem to stagnate Certainly there are limits to regional integration This comprehensive volume written by high profiled academics covers these themes by examining eleven cases ranging from the lack of integration in the Arctic and the Middle East to ongoing or progressing integration in Europe to uncover what blocks regional integration the results of which are used for developing new theoretical insights
