Abstract: This paper examines the impact of the 1997-1998 Asian financial crisis on the performance of the Japanese stock market. The results show that the Japanese stock market experienced a significant decline in performance during the crisis period, which was attributed to a combination of factors, including a sharp increase in the risk premium and a decline in the market's liquidity. The paper also discusses the implications of these findings for the Japanese economy and the role of the government in stabilizing the market.

Abstract: Staphylococcus aureus (S. aureus) is a Gram-positive bacterium that is a common cause of skin and soft tissue infections. It is also a leading cause of hospital-acquired infections. The purpose of this study was to determine the prevalence of S. aureus in the community and to identify risk factors for colonization. A cross-sectional study was conducted in a community in the north of Mexico. A total of 100 subjects were recruited from a community health center. The subjects were screened for S. aureus colonization using a polymerase chain reaction (PCR) assay. The results showed that 45% of the subjects were colonized with S. aureus. The colonization was significantly associated with the use of antibiotics (p = 0.001) and contact with health care facilities (p = 0.001). The study highlights the importance of S. aureus as a community pathogen and the need for further research into the mechanisms of colonization and the role of risk factors.
