An ^AEnemy We Created Alex Strick van Linschoten, Felix Kuehn, 2012-08-23 To this day the belief is widespread that the Taliban and al Qaeda are in many respects synonymous that their ideology and objectives are closely intertwined and that they have made common cause against the West for decades Yet this view have hardly ever been scrutinized or tested empirically This is all the more surprising given that the West's present entanglement in Afghanistan is commonly predicated on the need to defeat the Taliban in order to forestall further terrorist attacks worldwide There is thus an urgent need to re examine the known facts of the Taliban al Qaeda relationship and to tell the story of the Taliban's encounter with internationalist militant Islamism In An Enemy We Created Alex Strick van Linschoten and Felix Kuehn focus on the complexity of the relationship between the two groups and the individuals who established them The book which has already been cited prominently in The New Yorker is the first to examine in detail the relationship from the Taliban's perspective based on Arabic Dari and Pashtu sources drawing on the authors many years of experience in southern Afghanistan the Taliban's heartland They also interviewed Taliban decision makers field commanders and ordinary fighters while immersing themselves in Kandahar's society The story of those individuals who were to become the key decision makers and the relationships among all those involved from the mid 1990s onward reveal how frequently the Taliban and al Qaeda diverged rather than converged An Enemy We Created concludes that there is room to engage the Taliban on two fundamental issues renouncing al Qaeda and guaranteeing that Afghanistan will not be a sanctuary for international terrorists Yet the insurgency is changing and it could soon be too late to find a political solution The authors contend that certain aspects of the campaign in Afghanistan especially night raids and attempts to fragment and decapitate Taliban are transforming the resistance creating more opportunities for al Qaeda and helping it to attain its objectives Bridges to Communication , Human Insecurities in Southeast Asia Paul J. Carnegie, Victor T. King, Zawawi Ibrahim, 2016-08-30 This book is a collection of work by scholars currently pursuing research on human security and insecurities in Southeast Asia It deals with a set of insecurities that is not readily understood or measurable As such it conceptually locates the threats and impediments to human security within relationships of risk uncertainty safety and trust At the same time it presents a wide variety of investigations and approaches from both localized and regional perspectives By focusing on the human and relational dimensions of insecurities in Southeast Asia it highlights the ways in which vulnerable and precarious circumstances human insecurities are part of daily life for large numbers of people in Southeast Asia and are mainly beyond their immediate control Many of the situations people experience in Southeast Asia represent the real outcomes of a range of largely unacknowledged socio cultural economic transformations interlinked by local national regional and global forces factors and interests Woven from experience and observations of life at various sites in Southeast Asia the contributions in this volume give an internal and critical perspective to a complex and manifold issue They draw attention to a variety of the less than obvious threats to human security and show how perplexing those threats can be All of which underscores the significance of multidisciplinary approaches in rethinking and responding to the complex array of conditioning factors and interests underlying human insecurities in Southeast Asia
