Venus in the Afternoon Tehila Lieberman, 2012 Winner of the Katherine Anne Porter Prize in Short Fiction 2012 The short stories in this rich debut collection embody in their complexity Alice Munro's description of the short story as a world seen in a quick glancing light. In chiseled and elegant prose Lieberman conjures wildly disparate worlds. A middle aged window washer mourning his wife and an estranged daughter begins to grow attached to a young woman he sees through the glass. A writer against his better judgment pursues a new relationship with a femme fatale who years ago broke his heart and the daughter of a Holocaust survivor struggles with the delicate decision of whether to finally ask her aging mother how it was that she survived. It is all here the exigencies of love of lust the raw unlit terrain of grief. Whether plumbing the darker depths or casting a humorous eye on a doomed relationship these stories never force a choice between tragedy and redemption but rather invite us into the private moments and crucibles of lives as hungry and flawed as our own.

In These Times the Home Is a Tired Place Jessica Hollander, 2013-11-15 When an unwed pregnant woman is pressured to get married by her boyfriend parents and the entire culture around her she sees a feverish intensity emanating from the path to domesticity a paved path shaded by thick trunked trees lined with trim grass and manicured mansions where miniature houses play mailboxes and animals play lawn ornaments and people play happiness. Jessica Hollander's debut collection exposes a culture that glorifies and disparages traditional domesticity where people's confusion apathy and anxiety about the institutions of marriage and family often drive them to self destruction. The world in Hollander's nineteen stories appears at once familiar and vividly unsettling with undercurrents of anger and violence attached to everyday objects and spaces. A pink room is a woman exploded home smells of laundered clothes and gas from the grill and the sun is so bright the sky fills with over exposure wilting the corners to orange to red to black Here people adopt extreme and erratic behavior hack at furniture have affairs with high school students fantasize about sex with monsters laden flower bouquets with messages of hate but these self destructive acts and fantasies feel strangely like a form of growth or enlightenment or at least the only form that s available to them As characters become girlfriends wives husbands and mothers they struggle within their roles either fighting to escape them or struggling to play them correctly but always concerned with the loss of individuality of being swallowed up by society s expectations and becoming a mother or a wife instead of remaining themselves Hollander s debut collection effectively fuses the common childhood adventures unhappy adults with the bizarre a grandmother obsessed with buttons a gym full of people refusing to wear clothes to create an intriguing volume The details in these stories ring true and are recognizable amid the insanity A potent work from a strong new literary voice Publishers Weekly starred review The Expense of a View Polly Buckingham,2016-11-15 The stories in The Expense of a View explore the psyches of characters under extreme duress In the title story a woman who has moved across the country in an attempt to leave her past behind dumps an empty suitcase into the Columbia River over and over again In another story a woman who wakes up mornings only to discover she s been shooting heroin in a night trance meets her doppelganger on a rainy Oregon beach Most of the characters are displaced and disturbed they suffer from dissociative disorders denial and delusions The settings Florida eastern Washington Seattle and the Oregon coast mirror their lunacies While refusing to look at what s right in front of themselves might destroy them it s equally likely to be just what they need

American Short Story Alfred Bendixen, James Nagel, 2020-08-24 A COMPANION TO THE AMERICAN SHORT STORY A Companion to the American Short Story traces the development of this versatile literary genre over the past two centuries. Written by leading critics in the field and edited by two major scholars, it explores a wide range of writers from Edgar Allan Poe and Edith Wharton at the end of the nineteenth century to important modern writers such as Ernest Hemingway, William Faulkner, F. Scott Fitzgerald, and Richard Wright. Contributions with a broader focus address groups of multiethnic Asian and Jewish writers. Each chapter places the short story into context, focusing on the interaction of cultural forces and aesthetic principles. The Companion takes account of cutting-edge approaches to literary studies and contributes to the ongoing redefinition of the American canon, embracing genres such as ghost and detective fiction, cycles of interrelated short fiction, and comic social and political stories. The volume also reflects the diverse communities that have adopted this literary form and made it their own, featuring entries on a variety of feminist and multicultural traditions. This volume presents an important new consideration of the role of the short story in the literary history of American literature. There Is Only Us Zoe Ballering, 2022-11-15 The eight stories of speculative fiction in There Is Only Us explore themes of loneliness, connectedness, and selfhood. Each one is an act of intimacy, an altered world shown through the lens of a close relationship. Brothers, sisters, lovers, mothers, and daughters come together in myriad constellations, often so that one character can make a body-altering choice of extreme proportions. In a variety of forms, from a satirical retelling of Noah's Ark to a sister drama revolving around naked mole rats, There Is Only Us presents a series of escalating scenarios, intimate and yet absurd, that ask how much you can change and still be you. Ballering's stories bring to speculative fiction a new lightness and absurdity and a commitment to contemporary experiences of loneliness, especially among Millennials: loneliness during the COVID-19 pandemic, ecological loneliness, the sense that by the end of our lives the earth will be barren, and the unsolvable loneliness that so many experience despite carrying around a tiny device that claims it can connect them to any human anywhere on earth.

Some People Let You Down Mike Alberti, 2020-11-13 The nine stories in Mike Alberti's debut collection shine a sharp light on small-town American life, not the Arcadian small towns of yesteryear but the old mill towns hanging on after the mill has stopped running, the deserted agricultural communities in the middle of vast industrial farms, places where bad luck has become part of the weather. But even in these blighted, neglected landscapes, the possibility of renewal always presents itself; there is hope for these places and the characters who inhabit them. In these fresh, innovative stories some people let you down but some people don't
