

Writing Learning Objectives

Questions to Ask Yourself

- What do you want participants to be able to do back at their institutions as a direct result of attending this session (workshop, course, seminar, etc.)?
- What does our audience need to know or be able to do to bridge the gap between where they are today and where we want them to be tomorrow?
- If participants could learn only three things in this session, what would those three things be? What would be your three take-home messages?

Steps for Writing an Objective

1. Write each objective beginning with the phrase "After participating in this session, attendees should be able to"
2. Choose a verb that matches the desired level of knowledge or skill (see information on Bloom's Taxonomy below).
 - Verbs should indicate specific, measurable, and observable behaviors.
3. Review each objective to make sure it is an outcome.
 - Double check that you have not created a list of learning activity descriptions or agenda items (for example, "The participants should complete a simulation on how to perform the XYZ procedure").
 - Your objectives should describe what participants should be able to know or do as a result of a learning experience.
4. Examples:
 - Poorly defined learning objective: After participating in this session, attendees should be able to explain change management.
 - Well-defined learning objective: After participating in the session, attendees should be able to describe the three essential elements of change management.

Bloom's Taxonomy

Bloom's Taxonomy, created by Benjamin Bloom, is a hierarchical classification of the different levels of thinking

Teaching for Student Learning Dick Arends, Ann Kilcher, 2010-02-25 Teaching for Student Learning Becoming an Accomplished Teacher shows teachers how to move from novice to expert status by integrating both research and the wisdom of practice into their teaching It emphasizes how accomplished teachers gradually acquire and apply a broad repertoire of evidence based teaching practices in the support of student learning The book's content stems from three major fields of study 1 theories and research on how people learn including new insights from the cognitive and neurosciences 2 research on classroom practices shown to have the greatest effect on student learning and 3 research on effective schooling defined as school level factors that enhance student achievement and success Although the book's major focus is on teaching it devotes considerable space to describing how students learn and how the most effective and widely used models of teaching connect to principles of student learning Specifically it describes how research on teaching cognition and neuroscience converge to provide an evidence based science of learning which teachers can use to advance their practice Key features include the following Evidence Based Practice This theme is developed through 1 an ongoing review and synthesis of research on teaching and learning and the resulting guidelines for practice and 2 boxed research summaries within the chapters Instructional Repertoire Theme Throughout the book teaching is viewed as an extremely complex activity that requires a repertoire of instructional strategies that once mastered can be drawn upon to fit specific classrooms and teaching situations Standards based School Environments Education today is dominated by standards based school environments Unlike competing books this one describes these environments and shows how they impact curriculum design and learning activities The objective is to show how teachers can make standards based education work for them Pedagogical Features In addition to an end of book glossary each chapter contains research boxes reflection boxes itemized end of chapter summaries and end of chapter learning activities Website An accompanying website contains a variety of field oriented and site based activities that teachers can do alone or with colleagues

Writing in Film Studies, from Professional Practice to Practical Pedagogy Bryan Mead, 2024-01-09 A common refrain heard from instructors in offices across the world is that students have a hard time producing quality written discourse This is no different in the world of film studies where many undergraduate students struggle to cogently discuss the films they watch in class How can film instructors help students become better writers This book answers this question by first uncovering the disciplinary expectations we have for students and then offering strategies to explicitly teach those expectations in the classroom This book examines and identifies the disciplinary conventions of professional film studies discourse along with the expectations we have for student writing in undergraduate film courses What becomes clear from this analysis is that the pedagogical expectations we have for students are aligned with and shaped by professional writing in the discipline It helps to uncover the argument types instructors take for granted and helps those teaching undergraduate students not only to know what those expectations are but also how to use that knowledge to foster better student writing

Coordinating Student Affairs Divisional Assessment Erin Bentrim, Gavin W. Henning, Kimberly Yousey-Elsener, 2023-07-03 An ACPA NASPA Joint Publication The need for the new role of student affairs assessment coordinator has emerged in response to the increasing demand for outcomes information the proliferation of data and the recognition that coordinating this work within divisions is of paramount importance For those taking on this role this book constitutes a practical guide to leading and implementing an assessment program whether doing so full or part time as an individual or in a multi person office or whether reporting to or being in positional leadership Recognizing that this function that is new to student affairs and that those who take it on frequently find themselves in an in between world being both embedded with but also distinct from their divisional colleagues this book first addresses the common challenges and issues related to defining and implementing the role and cultivating a culture of assessment It then deals with the practicalities of creating systems and structures developing assessment skills throughout the organization and creating an integrated model for measuring progress towards strategic planning goals and for informing decision making and resource allocation The book concludes with guidance on leading and maintaining ethical standards related to data collection storage and sharing for the division and on navigating the dynamic political environment that assessment professionals will encounter

Fundamentals of Materials Science and Engineering William D. Callister, Jr., David G. Rethwisch, 2012 This text treats the important properties of the three primary types of materials metals ceramics and polymers as well as composites and the relationships that exist between the structural elements of these materials and their properties Emphasis is placed on mechanical behavior and failure including techniques that are employed to improve the mechanical and failure characteristics in terms of alteration of structural elements Furthermore individual chapters discuss each of corrosion electrical thermal magnetic and optical properties New and cutting edge materials are also discussed Even if an instructor does not have a strong materials background i e is from mechanical civil chemical or electrical engineering or chemistry departments he or she can easily teach from this text The material is not at a level beyond which the students can comprehend an instructor would not have to supplement in order to bring the students up to the level of the text Also the author has attempted to write in a concise clear and organized manner using terminology that is familiar to the students Extensive student and instructor resource supplements are also provided

Publisher s description A Road Map for Improvement of Student Learning and Support Services Through Assessment James Oliver Nichols,2005 The ^AOxford Handbook of Assessment Policy and Practice in Music Education, Volume 1 Timothy S. Brophy,2019-01-02 In this two volume Handbook contributors from across the globe provide expert perspectives on the assessment measurement and evaluation of student learning in music Evaluation Models D.L. Stufflebeam,George F. Madaus,T. Kellaghan,2005-12-19 This is an up to date revision of the classic text first published in 1983 It includes a historical perspective on the growth of evaluation theory and practice and two comparative analyses of the various alternative perspectives on evaluation It also includes articles representing the major schools of thought about evaluation written by the leaders who have developed these schools and models The final section describes and discusses the Standards for Program Evaluation and the reformation of program evaluation The No Shelf Required Guide to E-book Purchasing Sue Polanka,2011-12 Library Technology Reports vol 47 no 8 According to recent studies e book penetration in libraries of all types is rising rapidly Creating or expanding an e book collection is a complicated challenge In addition to facing the same challenges a librarian would face in developing a print collection librarians developing an e book collection also face a host of unprecedented legal technological and vendor challenges This issue of Library Technology Reports will examine these challenges focusing on strategies for purchasing e books in a consortium working with vendors implementing e reader programs in an academic environment and purchasing electronic textbooks Although the challenges are significant this issue will show how they can be overcome and how the effort it takes to develop an e book collection is well worth the effort Research Quarterly for Exercise and Sport ,1980 Preparing for College and University Teaching Joanna Gilmore,Molly Hatcher,2023-07-03 This book is a guide for designing professional development programs for graduate students The teaching competencies framework presented here can serve as the intended curriculum for such programs The book will also be an excellent resource for evaluating programs and will be an excellent resource for academics who study graduate students This book presents the work of the Graduate Teaching Competencies Consortium to identify organize and clarify the competencies that graduate students need to teach effectively when they join the professoriate To achieve this goal the Consortium developed a framework of 10 teaching competencies organized around three overarching questions What do graduate students need to achieve by the end of their graduate education to be successful teacher scholars What do graduate students need to understand about higher education to have successful careers as educators What do graduate students need to do to be successful teachers during their graduate student careers Although much work has been done to identify the competencies of effective teachers in higher education only a small portion of this work has been conducted with graduate student instructors This is an important area of research given that graduate students are critical in the higher education academic pipeline Nationally graduate students teach between 25% and 50% of courses offered at the undergraduate level Graduate student teaching is also critical because during early teaching experiences teachers establish a teaching style and set of teaching skills which will endure as graduate students enter the professoriate It is important to develop a teaching competency framework that is specific to graduate student instructors as they often have unique needs and roles as teachers For example graduate student instructors are in the unique position of becoming experts in their field concurrent with learning to teach Moreover as many professional development programs for graduate student instructors evolve based upon factors such as available resources and perceived needs of graduate students this framework will be a useful aid for thoughtfully designing strategic evidence based comprehensive professional development opportunities and programs

Measurement Error in Longitudinal Data Alexandru Cernat, Joseph W. Sakshaug, 2021-03-18

Longitudinal data is essential for understanding how the world around us changes Most theories in the social sciences and elsewhere have a focus on change be it of individuals of countries of organizations or of systems and this is reflected in the myriad of longitudinal data that are being collected using large panel surveys This type of data collection has been made easier in the age of Big Data and with the rise of social media Yet our measurements of the world are often imperfect and longitudinal data is vulnerable to measurement errors which can lead to flawed and misleading conclusions Measurement Error in Longitudinal Data tackles the important issue of how to investigate change in the context of imperfect data It compiles the latest advances in estimating change in the presence of measurement error from several fields and covers the entire process from the best ways of collecting longitudinal data to statistical models to estimate change under uncertainty to examples of researchers applying these methods in the real world This book introduces the essential issues of longitudinal data collection such as memory effects panel conditioning or mere measurement effects the use of administrative data and the collection of multi mode longitudinal data It also presents some of the most important models used in this area including quasi simplex models latent growth models latent Markov chains and equivalence DIF testing Finally the use of vignettes in the context of longitudinal data and estimation methods for multilevel models of change in the presence of measurement error are also discussed
