Unfinished Work Joseph Coleman, 2015-01-02 The era of the aging worker is here From the rice paddies of Japan to the heart of the American rust belt veteran international correspondent Joseph Coleman takes readers inside the lives of aging workers their workplaces and their societies

Unfinished Learning Kristen J. Amundson, 2022-11-21 COVID related school closures affected all students But for students who needed in person schooling most students with disabilities English learners and students living in poverty the impact was disproportionate and devastating One research calls it the largest increase in educational inequity in a generation Unfinished Learning follows families as they navigate the challenges of virtual learning from figuring out how to log on to a sometimes unstable school platform to ensuring that their child's special education needs were addressed It looks at what data is now showing about which students are and which students are not recovering from learning lost during the pandemic The book also traces the parent activism that arose as a result of school closures It explores two elections that followed close on the heels of school reopenings the 2021 election for governor in Virginia and the 2022 recall of school board members in San Francisco Many of the conclusions drawn by pundits about both those elections do not fit with either the polling or with parent interviews Finally the book offers some suggestions on how schools families and communities can prepare for the inevitable next school closures

The Unfinished Journey Searetha Smith-Collins, 2019-07-08 Without clear direction without understanding of one's past without heroes including women and positive role models without family without connections to neighbors and a viable community without social tranquility or firm rootedness without at least one parent who can be at home to parent without community control power and influence without a reference group with whom to identify without stability of one's personal world without clearly designated leaders without hope and a clear vision of life's expectancies and survival prospects without a spiritual and moral centeredness there is chaos Where there is chaos and lack of vision the people perish Without economic opportunity and outlets to release despair and anger without a feeling of safety and security without an unlimited future without controls on the use of drugs violence including gun violence and sexual promiscuity without responsibility and consequences for inappropriate behavior without responsibility as well as rights without commonly agreed upon expectations for structure and discipline without religious family and personal values to help connect people without concern for the collective as well as the individual without nurture without a circle of support from a responsible caring parent coach teacher grandparent minister neighbor or community member without someone who will take the time to reach out to make one feel special and valued the children suffer and the people are dysfunctional Where there is dysfunction the people are a threat to themselves and the institution of family and society How do you promote ways to shape success out of circumstances so as to empower future generations to come The expression of music especially in African American spiritual and gospel tradition provides insight into how trials threats and traditions have sustained us over the generations Whether we are talking about our personal storms or our family societal or global threats the first stanza of an old gospel hymn written fifty years ago by Ruth Caye Jones entitled In Times Like These rings true inspires and calls out to each generation still today In times like these we need a Savior We need an anchor In times like these We need a friend Be very sure be very sure Your anchor holds and grips a Solid Rock
