Applied Jewish Values in Social Sciences and Psychology Michael Ben-Avie, Yossi Ives, Kate Loewenthal, 2015-12-01
This volume interweaves concepts and methods from psychology and other social sciences with Jewish ideas and practices in order to address contemporary social issues. This volume brings together pioneering research from scholars in such fields as psychology, education, and religious studies. The authors integrate insights from Jewish texts and practices with the methods and concepts of the social sciences to create interventions that promote the well-being of children, adults, families, communities, and society. Divided into three sections: Education, Psychological Well-Being, Society and Beyond, this book shows how this integrationist approach can deepen our understanding and generate new insights around pressing social challenges to impact positive change in the lives of people and communities.

Subject Control in Online Catalogs Robert P. Holley, 1990-01-23
Is the quality of subject access significantly better with the online catalog than with the card catalogs? For many years librarians have been discontent with the quality of subject access in card catalogs and they hoped that the online catalog would offer significant improvements. This new book addresses this question from five different perspectives: research studies, opinion pieces from public and technical services librarians, special needs, the international perspective, and a comprehensive annotated bibliography of previous work. By exploring the progress of the online catalog to date and making suggestions for future research, the contributors to Subject Control in Online Catalogs provide important reading for public services and technical services librarians as well as systems librarians. In one single volume you will find research studies promising new paths for systems developments, descriptions of international developments that have vital implications for American subject access, and the valuable perspectives of innovative public and technical services librarians.
