

The background of the entire cover is a dark, atmospheric scene of jagged, grey rock formations. Several bright blue, ethereal light sources are scattered throughout, appearing as glowing portals or energy vents. One prominent light source is in the upper left, another in the upper right, and a third, more complex one is in the lower center, partially obscured by the title. The overall tone is mysterious and high-tech.

Not many war histories materialized war memoirs did not capture the public's attention and war novels and films presented a fictional war that either bore little resemblance to the doughboys experience or offered discordant views about what the war meant. In the end Americans emerged from the interwar years with limited pockets of public memory about the war that never found compromise in a dominant myth.
